Man's Body Recovered On Friday

Drowning Verdict Given by Coroner

The body of Arthur Quarterman, 25, of 8 East Third street, New York, reported missing from the Funcrest Lodge, Pine Hill, Thursday night, was recovered from Pine Hill Lake about 8 p. m. Friday.

The body of Mr. Quarterman, an employe of the lodge, was recovered with grappling hooks by James Smith, Sr., of Pine Hill, rowed by Clinton Cure, also of Pine Hill.

CORONER Francis J. McCardle issued a verdict of death by asphyxiation due to accidental drowning. The body was turned over to the Eugene B. Gormley Funeral Home, Phoenicia, pending funeral arrangements.

The body was removed from the water by Cpl. Ray Dunn of Phoenicia and Troopers J. Ellsworth, H. Ganss and E. Buffett.

The coroner said the hooks caught in Mr. Quarterman's bathing trunks. He said there were scratches on the victim's face caused by the hooks sometime during the 24 hours during which troopers, the Ulster county sheriff's office and local civilians grappled for the body. It is believed that the body was lodged in a crevice or near a stump.

THE BODY of Mr. Quarterman, who joined the lodge as a dishwasher on July 31, was found in 13 feet of water about 200 feet from shore, Coroner McCardle said.

It is believed that Mr. Quarterman, reported unable to swim, was walking along the edge of the lake when he accidentally fell in about 4 p. m. Thursday.

The coroner said Mr. Quarterman has a wife and child in St. Petersburg, Fla.

Says All Should Have Moon Value

Copenhagen, Denmark, Aug. 6 (AP)—A Dutch aeronautical engineer said today the nations of the world should agree to share the wealth of the moon—if it has any.

Simon Van Munster of the Aviolande Aircraft Factory, Papendreckt, the Netherlands, said the combined research efforts of all nations would be needed to get the first space ship to the moon. Therefore, he said, anything of value found there should be divided "among the world's people."

Kentucky Primaries Set Today

Democrats Name Governor Choice

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 6 (AP)—Kentucky picks its candidates for governor today after one of the hottest Democratic primaries ever to sear bluegrass soil.

General interest and factional bitterness may lure half a million Democrats to the polls. A much lighter turnout, possibly not more than 100,000 is expected for the quiet Republican primary.

FORMER GOV. A. B. (Happy) Chandler, the onetime baseball commissioner, is attempting a political comeback in the Democratic primary.

Some observers rated his comeback try a tossup with Judge Bert T. Combs, choice of Gov. Lawrence Wetherby and the state's two U. S. senators—Alben W. Barkley and Earle C. Clements.

Also in the Democratic contest is Jesse N. R. Cecil, unsuccessful in previous tries for the office.

OUTCOME of the primary battle will have a bearing on Sen. Clemens' political future and the makeup of Kentucky's delegation to the 1956 Democratic presidential nominating convention.

Chandler has indicated that, if elected, he would have an opponent face Clements when the senator, now acting majority leader, comes up for renomination next year.

Barkley has accused Chandler in speeches of deserting him during the 1952 national convention, when the former vice president was a candidate for the presidental nomination. Barkley claimed Chandler — while pledged to Barkley—worked against him, preferring Sen. Richard Russell of Georgia. Barkley returned to the Senate again last year.

AT 57, Chandler is attempting to recapture the governorship he gave up in 1939 to go to the U. S. Senate.

Combs, 43, resigned from the Court of Appeals, the state's highest tribunal, to run with state administration support. Wetherby is ineligible to succeed himself

Seeking the GOP nomination are former U. S. District Atty. Edwin R. Denney, 51, and James L. Clay, 42, also an attorney.

Condition Is Fair

Kingston Hospital today reported the condition of George Long, 24, of 127 Murray street, as "apparently fair." Mr. Long suffered injuries, which resulted in amputation of the right leg below the knee. after the car he was driving crashed into a tree at 64 Prince street near Jansen avenue early Friday. Police listed the car as "demolished."

Nationwide Call Made For Nurses

19 With Salk Vaccine Stricken

Boston, Aug. 6 (AP)—Dr. John H. Cauley, Boston health commissioner, last night issued a nationwide appeal to newspapers and radio stations for more nurses to care for New England's rising toll of polio cases.

Dr. Cauley's appeal came as the number of polio cases in the six-state area soared to just under the 1,000 mark.

CAULEY CALLED for all available full and part-time nurses to help in Boston's six hospitals. A clearing house for polio cases was established yesterday after Mayor John B. Hynes proclaimed a state of "limited emergency."

The Boston Health Department yesterday reported 26 new cases, bringing the city total this year to 301 and the Massachusetts number to 773. A year ago the state had 88 cases.

The official New England count yesterday was 999 cases, as compared with 220 last year. State totals and the corresponding 1954 figures were: Connecticut 108-92; New Hampshire 40-41; Rhode Island 37-11; Vermont 18-6; and Maine 23-9.

TWENTY POLIO deaths have been reported in Massachusetts to date.

State health officials said 19 children who received Salk vaccine were stricken with polio. In New Hampshire, state officials said five Salk-inoculated youngsters have polio. There have been no reported deaths among those receiving Salk inoculations.

Although Dr. Joseph Reardon, state health department epidemiologist, said there was no epidemic in Boston, local health officials advised parents not to bring their children to the city.

GROUPS IN Brockton and Adams, Mass., and East Hartford, Conn., cancelled scheduled trips to Boston Red Sox baseball games. Of some 600 Pawtucket, R. I., youngsters invited to Thursday's game, 250 refused.

Camp Bauercrest on Lake Attitash, Amesbury, Mass., announced postponement of a silver jubilee scheduled for tomorrow and cancellation of all visiting days.

Massachusetts health officials have said they do not recommend the closing of beaches and public swimming areas. Some communities, however, have temporarily ordered such places closed.

Misses All-Time City Mark

Friday's 105 Is Record for Year

Stifling heat enveloped Kingston again Friday as the oppressive hot spell continued unabated and the temperature fell one degree short of the all-time record, soaring to a steaming 105 degrees at 3 p. m. The highest reading ever recorded at the city engineer's office was 106, which a spokesman said was registered "several years ago."

Yesterday's reading exceeded the 103 and 104 degree temperatures which were high for July and jumped way over the all-time high for the date, 99 degrees on August 5, 1944.

ANOTHER UNHAPPY weather note is the all-time high recorded for this date, 94 degrees in 1937 and 1942.

However, there was expected to be slight relief today as the Associated Press reported Great Lakes breezes held temperatures to the relatively comfortable 80's in New York state today.

The heat broke 100 yesterday and was blamed for at least two deaths. Scattered thundershowers provided temporary relief but there was no indication of the soaking rain needed to save farmers crops.

Kansas City, Aug. 6 (AP)—A widespread search for a wealthy automobile dealer's missing wife, feared kidnaped and slain, had failed to turn up any productive leads by early today.

Conditions Of Released Airmen Good

Tokyo, Aug. 6 (AP) — Eleven U. S. airmen released by Communist China Thursday are "all completely okay physically," an air force medical source said after the fliers were examined by doctors today.

"It's amazing to see these men smiling after what they have been through. They are in amazing condition," the source said.

THE OPTIMISTIC report covered internal physical condition, not visible injuries such as a lost toe and crippled fingers suffered by Maj. William H. Baumer of Lewisburg, Pa. Baumer's left leg was wounded when the fliers' B29 was shot down. Later he suffered a frost bite.

The airmen, dressed in military hospital gowns, were confined as patients in the huge air conditioned hospital at nearby Far East air materiel command base.

Scores of air policemen surrounded their ward to keep outsiders from contacting them. It was learned the Red Cross has set up special telephone lines to permit them to call their families, but the air force was permitting no calls until it is finished examining and questioning them.

"IT IS NOT a question of secrecy," an air force source said. "They are in the hands of the medical authorities. The doctors have asked one complete day with them. If we keep interrupting, we shall never get finished and get them home."

It was learned American intelligence officials began questioning the fliers today about what they saw in 32 months inside Red China. There was good reason to believe the fliers are being sent home from Hong Kong via Tokyo because U. S. intelligence experts on China are concentrated in Japan.

One report said the men would leave Monday via Alaska for the United States. An air force source said that on orders from Washington, no details would be announced until a press conference scheduled for 3 p. m. Sunday (1 a. m. EST).

Two See Pay Approval in '56

Senators Change Minds on Boosts

Washington, Aug. 6 (AP)—Two Senate Democrats who helped to prevent pay raises this year for cabinet members and other top administration officials said today they will support salary boosts next year.

Sens. Russell (D.-Ga.) and Morse (D.-Ore.) teamed up in the final hours of the adjournment rush this week to block Senate action on the salary changes asked by President Eisenhower. But both said today they favor some increases.

"I WAS AGAINST Senate action on any legislation of this importance without adequate public hearings and proper consideration," Russell said.

"I'm confident that the Senate will approve some pay increases early next session although I favor a number of changes in its present form," he added.

Morse, who offered to talk the pay hike to death if necessary, went beyond Russell.

He not only forecast Senate approval, after hearings and amendments, but said he is willing to make the increases retroactive to the current month.

CONGRESS VOTED pay raises for its own members, judges, the military services, postal and civil service workers this year, but quit before reaching the top executive levels.

President Eisenhower in a personal letter on July 15 asked Senate and House Committee chairman to win approval "before this session adjourns."

He said that top executive

Jersey Man Hurt In Car Plunge Near Rosendale

Henry F. Brzezinski, 36, of 546 Edgewood avenue, West Orange, N. J., whose 1948 sedan went out of control in the northbound lane of the Thruway in the town of Rosendale about 8:30 p. m., yesterday, was reported in good condition in Kingston Hospital today.

Kingston state police said Mr. Brzezinski was traveling north when his car left the highway on the west side, turned over and plunged down an embankment in the center island near the 79 mile post.

HE SUFFERED lacerations and contusions of the face and a fractured right arm it was reported. The car had to be towed away.

Hospital authorities said Mr. Brzezinski would probably be discharged today.

Rhinebeck Set For Community Day Pageantry

The annual Community Days observance held in Rhinebeck each year is scheduled for next week. The streets with window displays of historic and ancient articles of interest have already begun to take on a festive appearance. Guns, costumes, uniforms, flags and documents are displayed.

A "tory" is hanging from a gibbet in one window and a pillory has been erected on the Beekman Arms lawn, still unoccupied. Also among the decorations for the occasion are the flower drums on the corners at Beekman Square and the children have decorated parking meters at the square.

On Monday the business section will take on a festive look with a display of flags and in the afternoon the children from the Recreation Commission playground will parade in costume.

One of the important days of the celebration will be Wednesday when costumes will be worn by every available person. Some of the women will wear simple Dutch attire, others will be in Colonial costumes. Men will appear in Dutch costumes, frontier clothes and Colonial attire or uniforms of the Continental Army.

On Wednesday at 2 p. m., a re-enactment of the ride into town from the river of Arent Van Wagenen will be staged. This year's program is especially dedicated to General Richard Montgomery and in the re-enactment, General Montgomery in the person of Donald S. Dapson, will receive a sword and commission on the lawn of the Beek-

Kefauver Hits ADA Criticism

Defends Ike, Leaders On Domestic Interests

Washington, Aug. 6 (AP)—Sen. Kefauver (D.-Tenn.) labeled as "unjust" today an Americans for Democratic Action (ADA) assertion that both President Eisenhower and Democratic congressional leaders have shown "indifference to the public interest."

Kefauver, who classes himself in the "Liberal" wing of his party, said he does not agree with the ADA charges voiced yesterday by National Chairman Joseph L. Rauh Jr.

Rauh said Eisenhower offered "hopelessly inadequate" remedies for critical domestic problems and the Democrats accepted them in the name of "teamwork."

The ADA is a private organization, espousing New Deal principles, which often supports Democratic candidates.

"It is unthoughtful and unjust to make any such blanket indictment of the Democratic congressional leaders and of President Eisenhower" Kefauver said in an interview.

"Congress didn't accomplish everything we would have liked to do but it was quite successful in foreign affairs matters. There was more confusion on domestic issues but we still have another session and I hope that in it school construction, highway, social security, water resources and farm legislation will be the first order of business."

Rauh told reporters that ADA welcomes "the revival of bipartisanship on foreign affairs." He added that "such bipartisanship is no excuse for bipartisan suf-

Reverse Propellers Fail

Skillful Landing Helps Save 68 Aboard Plane

Chicago, Aug. 6 (AP)—Skillful piloting was credited with saving the lives of 68 persons in a Northwest Airlines plane accident late yesterday.

The pilot, Capt. George A. Stone of Minneapolis, landed his huge four-engine Stratocruiser on Midway Airport's northwest runway and noticed suddenly his propellers would not reverse.

Safety officials said a contributing factor was failure of the mechanism which reverses propellers to help slow the speed of the plane after landing. He worked the brakes frantically, but their power was insufficient to halt the big plane.

"When I saw the rigid arrow markers, landing lights and gasoline stations at the corner of the field," Stone told a reporter, "I applied full left rudder."

The big plane veered from the runway, drove through a steel wire fence which served to partially stop it and rolled into the middle of Central avenue, narrowly missing a car.

The 62 passengers and crew of six were evacuated quickly, some through emergency chutes extending from the plane. There

New Hampshire's Lottery Plan Gets Unexpected Veto

Concord, N. H, Aug 6 (AP)—The 134th state Legislature adjourned at 12:07 a. m. (EDT) today after a marathon 13-hour meeting in which it sustained Gov. Lane Dwinell's unexpected veto of a controversial bill that would have established the nation's only state-operated sweepstakes.

The governor said the bill, designed to raise an estimated two million dollars a year in state revenue, was "contrary to the best interests of this state."

The veto—first and only such action by the governor since he took office last January—followed protests by church leaders and others that the bill raised a moral issue "affecting the good name of the state, the cause of religion and the welfare of all our people."

Supporters of the sweepstake plan had contended the state needs the money and that it would help wipe out illegal gambling.

The Republican governor, who earlier in the week had indicated that he would sign the measure, said in his veto message, "a re-examination and appraisal of the overall implications...has led me to a contrary conclusion."

Hit-Run Driver Is Involved in Local Incidents

A hit and run driver Friday night forced one car up over a curb and some two hours later hit a parked car, police reported.

Clayton Brooks of 180 Hasbrouck avenue notified police at 8:10 p. m., that he was operating his car east on Delaware avenue when the operator of a car bearing license plate UL-7884, traveling west on the same street, forced him up over the curb in front of the Schultz Taxi Company, 599 Delaware avenue.

Cancer Claims Suzan Ball, Carmen Miranda Is Victim

Hollywood, Aug. 6 (AP)—Death, in two guises, has taken two Hollywood actresses whose passing the screen capital mourned today.

A lingering death from cancer claimed the life of Suzan Ball at 21.

A sudden heart attack proved fatal to 41-year-old Carmen Miranda.

Miss Ball, a striking, dark-haired, dark-eyed actress, had suffered from the disease which caused her death since 1953, when she slipped and injured her knee in a dance rehearsal.

Her right leg was later amputated, and valiant Suzan went on to marriage and a resumption of her screen career before the malignancy returned—this time in her lungs.

She died yesterday at her home in Beverly Hills.

Miss Miranda also died in a Beverly Hills home—but after a strenuous day spent singing and dancing with the dazzling energy which won her fame as the "Brazilian bombshell."

Miss Ball's husband, actor Richard Long, had been told by doctors that death was near. But Miss Miranda's husband,

FBI Joins in State Hunt For Missing Brink Bandit

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 6 (AP) — The FBI today joined police all over the state in the hunt for the missing "third man" connected with Thursday's thwarted holdup of a Brink's armored truck containing almost a half million dollars in race track receipts.

And while the state is being combed for James Sheridan, of New York, Buffalo police are quietly canvassing the west side area where the holdup took place, to see if a fourth man—a driver of a getaway car—wasn't also involved.

The FBI yesterday obtained a warrant for Sheridan charging him with unlawful flight to avoid prosecution for robbery.

The search spread from Buffalo to New York yesterday when it was thought Sheridan might have been on a New York Central train. Detectives swarmed all over the "Knickerbocker" when it arrived in New York.

The train was also searched at Albany after a passenger, who

Rhinebeck Set For Community Day Pageantry

The annual Community Days observance held in Rhinebeck each year is scheduled for next week. The streets with window displays of historic and ancient articles of interest have already begun to take on a festive appearance. Guns, costumes, uniforms, flags and documents are displayed.

A "tory" is hanging from a gibbet in one window and a pillory has been erected on the Beekman Arms lawn, still unoccupied. Also among the decorations for the occasion are the flower drums on the corners at Beekman Square and the children have decorated parking meters at the square.

On Monday the business section will take on a festive look with a display of flags and in the afternoon the children from the Recreation Commission playground will parade in costume.

One of the important days of the celebration will be Wednesday when costumes will be worn by every available person. Some of the women will wear simple Dutch attire, others will be in Colonial costumes. Men will appear in Dutch costumes, frontier clothes and Colonial attire or uniforms of the Continental Army.

On Wednesday at 2 p. m., a re-enactment of the ride into town from the river of Arent Van Wagenen will be staged. This year's program is especially dedicated to General Richard Montgomery and in the re-enactment, General Montgomery in the person of Donald S. Dapson, will receive a sword and commission on the lawn of the Beek-

Misses All-Time City Mark

Friday's 105 Is Record for Year

Stifling heat enveloped Kingston again Friday as the oppressive hot spell continued unabated and the temperature fell one degree short of the all-time record, soaring to a steaming 105 degrees at 3 p. m. The highest reading ever recorded at the city engineer's office was 106, which a spokesman said was registered "several years ago."

Yesterday's reading exceeded the 103 and 104 degree temperatures which were high for July and jumped way over the all-time high for the date, 99 degrees on August 5, 1944.

ANOTHER UNHAPPY weather note is the all-time high recorded for this date, 94 degrees in 1937 and 1942.

However, there was expected to be slight relief today as the Associated Press reported Great Lakes breezes held temperatures to the relatively comfortable 80's in New York state today.

The heat broke 100 yesterday and was blamed for at least two deaths. Scattered thundershowers provided temporary relief but there was no indication of the soaking rain needed to save farmers crops.

Mate Fears Wife Dead; Rules Out Kidnap for Money

Kansas City, Aug. 6 (AP)—A widespread search for a wealthy automobile dealer's missing wife, feared kidnaped and slain, had failed to turn up any productive leads by early today.

The blood-spattered clothing and car of Mrs. Wilma Allen, 34, mother of two, were the only clues.

MRS. ALLEN, who always cautioned her two young sons to

Kefauver Hits ADA Criticism

Defends Ike, Leaders On Domestic Interests

Washington, Aug. 6 (AP)—Sen. Kefauver (D.-Tenn.) labeled as "unjust" today an Americans for Democratic Action (ADA) assertion that both President Eisenhower and Democratic congressional leaders have shown "indifference to the public interest."

Kefauver, who classes himself in the "Liberal" wing of his party, said he does not agree with the ADA charges voiced yesterday by National Chairman Joseph L. Rauh Jr.

Rauh said Eisenhower offered "hopelessly inadequate" remedies for critical domestic problems and the Democrats accepted them in the name of "teamwork."

The ADA is a private organization, espousing New Deal principles, which often supports Democratic candidates.

"It is unthoughtful and unjust to make any such blanket indictment of the Democratic congressional leaders and of President Eisenhower" Kefauver said in an interview.

"Congress didn't accomplish everything we would have liked to do but it was quite successful in foreign affairs matters. There was more confusion on domestic issues but we still have another session and I hope that in it school construction, highway, social security, water resources and farm legislation will be the first order of business."

Rauh told reporters that ADA welcomes "the revival of bipartisanship on foreign affairs." He added that "such bipartisanship is no excuse for bipartisan suf-

Reverse Propellers Fail

Skillful Landing Helps Save 68 Aboard Plane

Chicago, Aug. 6 (AP)—Skillful piloting was credited with saving the lives of 68 persons in a Northwest Airlines plane accident late yesterday.

The pilot, Capt. George A. Stone of Minneapolis, landed his huge four-engine Stratocruiser on Midway Airport's northwest runway and noticed suddenly his propellers would not reverse.

Safety officials said a contributing factor was failure of the mechanism which reverses propellers to help slow the speed of the plane after landing. He worked the brakes frantically, but their power was insufficient to halt the big plane.

"When I saw the rigid arrow markers, landing lights and gasoline stations at the corner of the field," Stone told a reporter, "I applied full left rudder."

The big plane veered from the runway, drove through a steel wire fence which served to partially stop it and rolled into the middle of Central avenue, narrowly missing a car.

The 62 passengers and crew of six were evacuated quickly, some through emergency chutes extending from the plane. There

New Hampshire's Lottery Plan Gets Unexpected Veto

Concord, N. H, Aug 6 (AP)—The 134th state Legislature adjourned at 12:07 a. m. (EDT) today after a marathon 13-hour meeting in which it sustained Gov. Lane Dwinell's unexpected veto of a controversial bill that would have established the nation's only state-operated sweepstakes.

The governor said the bill, designed to raise an estimated two million dollars a year in state revenue, was "contrary to the best interests of this state."

The veto—first and only such action by the governor since he took office last January—followed protests by church leaders and others that the bill raised a moral issue "affecting the good name of the state, the cause of religion and the welfare of all our people."

Supporters of the sweepstake plan had contended the state needs the money and that it would help wipe out illegal gambling.

The Republican governor, who earlier in the week had indicated that he would sign the measure, said in his veto message, "a re-examination and appraisal of the overall implications...has led me to a contrary conclusion."

Cancer Claims Suzan Ball, Carmen Miranda Is Victim

Hollywood, Aug. 6 (AP)—Death, in two guises, has taken two Hollywood actresses whose passing the screen capital mourned today.

A lingering death from cancer claimed the life of Suzan Ball at 21.

A sudden heart attack proved fatal to 41-year-old Carmen Miranda.

Miss Ball, a striking, dark-haired, dark-eyed actress, had suffered from the disease which caused her death since 1953, when she slipped and injured her knee in a dance rehearsal.

Her right leg was later amputated, and valiant Suzan went on to marriage and a resumption of her screen career before the malignancy returned—this time in her lungs.

She died yesterday at her home in Beverly Hills.

Miss Miranda also died in a Beverly Hills home—but after a strenuous day spent singing and dancing with the dazzling energy which won her fame as the "Brazilian bombshell."

Miss Ball's husband, actor Richard Long, had been told by doctors that death was near. But Miss Miranda's husband,

FBI Joins in State Hunt For Missing Brink Bandit

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 6 (AP) — The FBI today joined police all over the state in the hunt for the missing "third man" connected with Thursday's thwarted holdup of a Brink's armored truck containing almost a half million dollars in race track receipts.

And while the state is being combed for James Sheridan, of New York, Buffalo police are quietly canvassing the west side area where the holdup took place, to see if a fourth man—a driver of a getaway car—wasn't also involved.

The FBI yesterday obtained a warrant for Sheridan charging him with unlawful flight to avoid prosecution for robbery.

The search spread from Buffalo to New York yesterday when it was thought Sheridan might have been on a New York Central train. Detectives swarmed all over the "Knickerbocker" when it arrived in New York.

The train was also searched at Albany after a passenger, who

What is an Episcopalian?

An Episcopalian is a member of the Protestant Episcopal Church, which is one branch of the Anglican Communion—a religious group spread throughout the world and numbering some forty million Christians.

There are "Episcopal Churches" in all parts of the globe. The Church of England is the mother of them all. Many of our churches are self-governing, like the Japanese church (called the Holy Catholic Church in Japan) or the Canadian. They all use the Book of Common Prayer; they all are in communion with the Archbishop of Canterbury; they all recognize bishops as their chief pastors.

Is the Episcopalian Church Catholic or Protestant?

In a profound sense, it is both. It is sometimes called "the bridge church."

The Episcopal Church preserves the ancient Catholic sacraments and professes the ancient Catholic creeds; this was the intention of its reformers in the 16th century.

On the other hand, it is a "reformed" church, for during that century, the authority of the Bishop of Rome (the Pope) was rejected and many modifications were made in worship and doctrine. But in no sense did the early reformers in England intend to deny "Catholic truth."

The official title of the Church in America, "the Protestant Episcopal Church," was adopted when the word "Protestant" meant "non-Roman" or "non-papal."

What is the Episcopal attitude to Roman Catholicism?

The Episcopal Church has no official position in regard to present-day Roman Catholicism. It believes that the Anglican Communion possesses all the essential marks of historical Catholicism—the apostolic faith, sacraments and ministry.

But most Episcopalians would seriously question Roman Catholic centralization of power in the Bishop of Rome, and would regard with disfavor what they conceive to be the Roman Church's suppression of freedom in many intellectual areas and elsewhere.

Did Henry VIII found the Episcopal Church?

No. Under Henry, the freedom of the English Church from the authority of the Bishop of Rome was achieved; but that was the end of a long period of protest and agitation against what were conceived to be the Pope's unwarranted usurpations of authority. Henry's desire for a divorce provided the occasion but was not the cause of the independence of the Church of England.

What are the basic beliefs of Episcopalians?

They are affirmed in the Apostles' Creed and the Nicene Creed.

The Apostles' Creed is the ancient baptismal statement of faith. As used in Episcopalian services, it runs: "I believe in God the Father Almighty, Maker of heaven and earth:

"And in Jesus Christ his only Son our Lord: Who was conceived by the Holy Ghost, Born of the Virgin Mary: Suffered under Pontius Pilate, Was crucified, dead, and buried: He descended into hell; The third day He arose from the dead: He ascended into heaven, And sitteth on the right hand of God the Father Almighty: From thence He shall come to judge the quick and the dead.

"I believe in the Holy Ghost: The holy Catholic Church; The Communion of Saints: The Forgiveness of Sins: The Resurrection of the body: And the Life everlasting. Amen."

The Nicene Creed, used at the service of Holy Communion, is an expanded statement of the Christian faith, essentially the same as the Apostles' Creed.

Both creeds state the main points of Christian belief in a pictorial and dramatic form. Some of the phrases are clearly "symbolic" (as, "sitteth on the right hand of God the Father," which of course could not be literally true); some parts are historical in intention (as "born," "crucified," "dead," "buried," "rose again"); and some parts are philosophical, often phrased in the pictorial language which the early Church acquired from its Jewish background.

What do Episcopalians believe about Jesus Christ?

They believe that he is "truly God and truly man, united in one person" for the salvation of mankind. There are different ways of understanding and teaching this doctrine, but it is central and unchangeable for all Episcopalians.

What is the Episcopal view of the Virgin Birth?

The creeds and the liturgy of the Episcopal Church assert the traditional belief that Jesus was born of Mary without human father.

There is no disagreement within the Church on the theological meaning of the Virgin Birth. There has been, and still is, disagreement about the Virgin Birth in its biological detail. Most Episcopalians probably accept it as literally true; some regard it as symbolic in character.

The Episcopal Church is able to contain both types of thinking within it, since all Episcopalians accept the Incarnation—the true deity and humanity of Jesus—as the central truth about Christ.

What about the Trinity?

The Trinity is the Christian teaching about God. In the light of man's experience of God's working in the world, Christians have been driven to assert that God is as he reveals himself. He is Creative Reality (God the Father); he is Expressive Act (God the Son); he is Responsive Power (God the Holy Spirit). Yet he is one God. This is "theology." What matters most, in the Book of Common Prayer, about the Trinity is that we worship God and experience him in a "trinitarian" fashion.

Do Episcopalians practice private confession?

They may, since provision is made in the Prayer Book for private confession of sins to a priest, with the declaration of absolution by him. However, this is not enforced, as in the Roman Catholic Church; it is entirely optional.

Many Episcopalians avail themselves of the privilege, some frequently, some occasionally. Many do not desire to use this "means of grace" and find satisfaction in the general confessions and absolutions which are provided in the regular services of the Church.

How do Episcopalians regard the Bible?

The Holy Scriptures are, for Episcopalians, the great source and testing ground of Christian doctrine. Nothing may be taught "as necessary to eternal salvation" excepting what can be "proved" (the Elizabethan word for "tested") by Holy Scripture.

But the Episcopal Church does not hold to the literal inerrancy of Scripture. The Bible is considered sacred for its general inspiration, as the record of God's revelation.

The Episcopal Church maintains a balance between gospel and tradition, on the one hand, and the use of reason on the other. Freedom of investigation, restatements of Christian faith and incorporation of scientific truths are possible without creating violent fundamentalist-modernist controversies.

The Episcopal Church has accepted the theory of evolution as an account of man's origin, as well as other new scientific discoveries, without disturbing its central beliefs.

In both freedom of inquiry and biblical criticism, the Episcopal Church's position has sometimes been called a "liberal" or even a "modernist" Catholicism.

What is the Book of Common Prayer?

At the time of the English reforms, the old service books of the Church were translated into English. Some of the services were combined and edited; many were shortened and simplified. The result was the Book of Common Prayer, completed in 1549.

All later Prayer Books, including that used in America today, are re-editings of the 1549 book, whose beautiful, stately language, simplicity and dignity are unparalleled. The regular services, like the Holy Communion or Holy Eucharist, Morning and Evening Prayer, the Litany, are all taken from the Prayer Book.

Episcopalians believe that a prescribed form of service, with parts assigned to clergy and people, is the most fitting way to adore God. Frequent revisions are made to meet the needs of succeeding ages; but the principle of ordered worship remains at the heart of Anglicanism.

The worship of the Episcopal Church is not rigid. Many variations are found in the Prayer Book; the special prayers ("collects") and the different readings from the Bible give considerable variety for each Sunday and holy day.

Do Episcopalians believe in heaven and hell?

The teachings of the Episcopal Church about death, judgment, heaven and hell are stated plainly in the Book of Common Prayer.

Death marks the end of this period of man's life. He is judged in terms of his real character, by a God "unto whom all hearts are open, all desires known, and from whom no secrets are hid."

Heaven is a state in which the vision of God is enjoyed in a "life of perfect service" of God.

Hell is alienation from God, and therefore the loss of that goal to which man's whole existence is directed.

Episcopalians do not believe in a physical heaven or hell; these are "states of being." The departed in whom there is some possibility of goodness are prepared for the full enjoyment of God by such cleansing and purifying as they may require—in a way, this resembles the idea of "purgatory." But Episcopalians do not use the term in their official teaching because they feel that it is often associated with crude ideas of payment of penalty and the like.

By the "resurrection," the Episcopal Church means not the raising of the physical body we now possess but the re-creation by God of the total personality of man with a "spiritual body"—that is, with an instrument of self-expression appropriate to a heavenly life.

What then is meant by salvation?

Modern Episcopalians tend to understand by this term "health or wholeness of life."

Salvation means that one is given the wholeness which is God's will for man, and is delivered from arrogance and selfishness. Salvation has to do not only with the "hereafter" but also with man's present earthly existence. In man, sinner because he is ridiculously proud and self-centered, there is no real "health"; by fellowship with God in Christ, he is brought into the sphere of healthy and whole life.

Does the Episcopal Church have a priesthood?

It does. There are three "orders of ministry" included in "Holy Orders": bishops, priests, deacons.

The Offices of Instruction state that the bishop's office is "to be a chief pastor in the Church; to confer Holy Orders; and to administer confirmation."

A priest's office is "to minister to the people committed to his care; to preach the Word of God; to baptize; to celebrate the Holy Communion, and to pronounce absolution and blessing in God's name."

The deacon assists the priest in divine service and other ministrations; he is a minister in the real sense of the word, but without such "higher" privileges as priest and bishop.

The priest is the "ministerial representative" for Christ in his church; he also represents the priesthood of the laity, which is shared by all who are baptized.

An Episcopal minister is never called a "preacher," since that is only one aspect of his office; he is also celebrant of the Holy Communion — absolver, teacher, shepherd of his flock.

The ministers of the Episcopal Church may marry or not marry as they see fit, "as they shall judge the same to serve better to godliness."

Are there monks and nuns in the Episcopal Church?

Yes. There are many orders of Episcopal monks and nuns, both in the United States and elsewhere.

Some are purely "contemplative"—that is, engaged in prayer; others are "mixed"—that is, engaged both in prayer and in teaching, writing, preaching.

These men and women take the vows of poverty, chastity and obedience. They do not marry. They live in communities established for the purpose of sharing a common life of work and prayer.

What is meant by "high," "low" and "broad" Church?

These words are used to describe parishes, but they are misleading.

A "high" parish is one which emphasizes sacramental worship, the supreme value of the "Catholic tradition," and a rather elaborate service of worship.

A "low" parish is one in which the services are simpler and a stronger emphasis is placed on the gospel and on personal religion.

In a "broad" parish, which may be either "high" or "low," the importance of a rational understanding of the Christian tradition is stressed, with a concern for "liberal values."

But all these emphases meet in the proclamation of the gospel, sacramental worship and the reasonable presentation of Christianity. Episcopalians appeal to scriptures, tradition and personal experience, as well as reason, for vindication of the truth of the Christian faith. Differences in emphasis are welcomed in the Episcopal Church, as long as the central affirmations are maintained.

Does the Episcopal Church permit divorce?

In America, the "canons" (or church law) do not recognize divorce, but do provide a number of grounds for annulment—the ecclesiastical declaration that no marriage has in fact existed because of some factor that made such impossible.

A bishop may permit a divorced person to remarry if certain conditions are met. He may also admit to Holy Communion persons who have been divorced and remarried—if they can prove that they are in good faith, are struggling to live a Christian life and have demonstrated their stability and repentance.

What is the Episcopalian attitude to birth control?

The Anglican Communion has spoken, through its conference of bishops at Lambeth, on birth control, saying that when practiced without selfish motives, it is permissible. There has been much discussion of the "moral theology" of contraception, but no more clearly defined position has yet been taken.

Do Episcopalians believe that theirs is the only true faith?

No. We hold that all who are baptized (whether by Episcopalian or other baptism, provided it is with water and in the name of the Holy Trinity) are members of the Church of Christ. Christ is the "head" of his Church (called in the New Testament "The Body of Christ") and those who belong to him by baptism are his "members."

Confirmation by the bishop is necessary to communicant status, but it is not believed to be "joining the Church." It is a sacramental rite by which, Episcopalians believe, the Holy Spirit is given to a Christian reaching communicant status.

Even those who are not actually baptized, but by intention would be baptized if they were able, are believed to be "saved." The Church is Christ's instrument for fulfilling his purpose in the world and the means by which his continuing presence is made available. Of that one Church, Episcopalians believe they are a part; they have never claimed they are the only part.

How is the Episcopal Church governed?

In different countries, the Anglican Communion has different kinds of government.

In the United States, there are parishes, with elected laymen t represent the congregation; di ceses, with the "convention" u der which the bishop and n clergy carry on the Church work; and a general conventio which meets every three yea and represents the entire Amer can Church.

The Church is democrati delegates to the general conve tion and laymen to diocesan co ventions are elected. At t general convention, the House Deputies, composed of laym and priests, and the House Bishops, in which all bisho may sit, must concur in legisl tive measures. Neither bisho nor parish clergy have any aut cratic rights; all must coopera with the laity.

How many Episcopalians a there in the United States?

Over 2,715,825 Americans ha been baptized in the Episcop lian faith. In addition, a qua ter-million or so persons look the Church for ministrations b are not formal members. T Episcopal Church has 6,958 cle gy in the United States, in 7,9 parishes and missions.

What role has the Episcop Church played in American hi tory?

The first service of the Ang can Communion in the Ne World was held at Jamestow Virginia, in 1607. For ma years, the Episcopalians in t colonies were under the bish of London; with the War of I dependence, they became se governing.

A majority of the founders this nation were Episcopalians including George Washingt Alexander Hamilton, Jam Madison, James Monroe, Jo Marshall and John Jay. Fr that time to the present, t Church has played a significa part in our national life. Desp its close fellowship with t Church of England, it has be thoroughly American and members are loyal citizens this land.

What is an Episcopalian?

An Episcopalian is a member of the Protestant Episcopal Church, which is one branch of the Anglican Communion—a religious group spread throughout the world and numbering some forty million Christians.

There are "Episcopal Churches" in all parts of the globe. The Church of England is the mother of them all. Many of our churches are self-governing, like the Japanese church (called the Holy Catholic Church in Japan) or the Canadian. They all use the Book of Common Prayer; they all are in communion with the Archbishop of Canterbury; they all recognize bishops as their chief pastors.

Is the Episcopalian Church Catholic or Protestant?

In a profound sense, it is both. It is sometimes called "the bridge church."

The Episcopal Church preserves the ancient Catholic sacraments and professes the ancient Catholic creeds; this was the intention of its reformers in the 16th century.

On the other hand, it is a "reformed" church, for during that century, the authority of the Bishop of Rome (the Pope) was rejected and many modifications were made in worship and doctrine. But in no sense did the early reformers in England intend to deny "Catholic truth."

The official title of the Church in America, "the Protestant Episcopal Church," was adopted when the word "Protestant" meant "non-Roman" or "non-papal."

What is the Episcopal attitude to Roman Catholicism?

The Episcopal Church has no official position in regard to present-day Roman Catholicism. It believes that the Anglican Communion possesses all the essential marks of historical Catholicism—the apostolic faith, sacraments and ministry.

But most Episcopalians would seriously question Roman Catholic centralization of power in the Bishop of Rome, and would regard with disfavor what they conceive to be the Roman Church's suppression of freedom in many intellectual areas and elsewhere.

Did Henry VIII found the Episcopal Church?

No. Under Henry, the freedom of the English Church from the authority of the Bishop of Rome was achieved; but that was the end of a long period of protest and agitation against what were conceived to be the Pope's unwarranted usurpations of authority. Henry's desire for a divorce provided the occasion but was not the cause of the independence of the Church of England.

What are the basic beliefs of Episcopalians?

They are affirmed in the Apostles' Creed and the Nicene Creed.

The Apostles' Creed is the ancient baptismal statement of faith. As used in Episcopalian services, it runs: "I believe in God the Father Almighty, Maker of heaven and earth:

"And in Jesus Christ his only Son our Lord: Who was conceived by the Holy Ghost, Born of the Virgin Mary: Suffered under Pontius Pilate, Was crucified, dead, and buried: He descended into hell; The third day He arose from the dead: He ascended into heaven, And sitteth on the right hand of God the Father Almighty: From thence He shall come to judge the quick and the dead.

"I believe in the Holy Ghost: The holy Catholic Church; The Communion of Saints: The Forgiveness of Sins: The Resurrection of the body: And the Life everlasting. Amen."

The Nicene Creed, used at the service of Holy Communion, is an expanded statement of the Christian faith, essentially the same as the Apostles' Creed.

Both creeds state the main points of Christian belief in a pictorial and dramatic form. Some of the phrases are clearly "symbolic" (as, "sitteth on the right hand of God the Father," which of course could not be literally true); some parts are historical in intention (as "born," "crucified," "dead," "buried," "rose again"); and some parts are philosophical, often phrased in the pictorial language which the early Church acquired from its Jewish background.

What do Episcopalians believe about Jesus Christ?

They believe that he is "truly God and truly man, united in one person" for the salvation of mankind. There are different ways of understanding and teaching this doctrine, but it is central and unchangeable for all Episcopalians.

What is the Episcopal view of the Virgin Birth?

The creeds and the liturgy of the Episcopal Church assert the traditional belief that Jesus was born of Mary without human father.

There is no disagreement within the Church on the theological meaning of the Virgin Birth. There has been, and still is, disagreement about the Virgin Birth in its biological detail. Most Episcopalians probably accept it as literally true; some regard it as symbolic in character.

The Episcopal Church is able to contain both types of thinking within it, since all Episcopalians accept the Incarnation—the true deity and humanity of Jesus—as the central truth about Christ.

What about the Trinity?

The Trinity is the Christian teaching about God. In the light of man's experience of God's working in the world, Christians have been driven to assert that God is as he reveals himself. He is Creative Reality (God the Father); he is Expressive Act (God the Son); he is Responsive Power (God the Holy Spirit). Yet he is one God. This is "theology." What matters most, in the Book of Common Prayer, about the Trinity is that we worship God and experience him in a "trinitarian" fashion.

Do Episcopalians practice private confession?

They may, since provision is made in the Prayer Book for private confession of sins to a priest, with the declaration of absolution by him. However, this is not enforced, as in the Roman Catholic Church; it is entirely optional.

Many Episcopalians avail themselves of the privilege, some frequently, some occasionally. Many do not desire to use this "means of grace" and find satisfaction in the general confessions and absolutions which are provided in the regular services of the Church.

How do Episcopalians regard the Bible?

The Holy Scriptures are, for Episcopalians, the great source and testing ground of Christian doctrine. Nothing may be taught "as necessary to eternal salvation" excepting what can be "proved" (the Elizabethan word for "tested") by Holy Scripture.

But the Episcopal Church does not hold to the literal inerrancy of Scripture. The Bible is considered sacred for its general inspiration, as the record of God's revelation.

The Episcopal Church maintains a balance between gospel and tradition, on the one hand, and the use of reason on the other. Freedom of investigation, restatements of Christian faith and incorporation of scientific truths are possible without creating violent fundamentalist-modernist controversies.

The Episcopal Church has accepted the theory of evolution as an account of man's origin, as well as other new scientific discoveries, without disturbing its central beliefs.

In both freedom of inquiry and biblical criticism, the Episcopal Church's position has sometimes been called a "liberal" or even a "modernist" Catholicism.

What is the Book of Common Prayer?

At the time of the English reforms, the old service books of the Church were translated into English. Some of the services were combined and edited; many were shortened and simplified. The result was the Book of Common Prayer, completed in 1549.

All later Prayer Books, including that used in America today, are re-editings of the 1549 book, whose beautiful, stately language, simplicity and dignity are unparalleled. The regular services, like the Holy Communion or Holy Eucharist, Morning and Evening Prayer, the Litany, are all taken from the Prayer Book.

Episcopalians believe that a prescribed form of service, with parts assigned to clergy and people, is the most fitting way to adore God. Frequent revisions are made to meet the needs of succeeding ages; but the principle of ordered worship remains at the heart of Anglicanism.

The worship of the Episcopal Church is not rigid. Many variations are found in the Prayer Book; the special prayers ("collects") and the different readings from the Bible give considerable variety for each Sunday and holy day.

Do Episcopalians believe in heaven and hell?

The teachings of the Episcopal Church about death, judgment, heaven and hell are stated plainly in the Book of Common Prayer.

Death marks the end of this period of man's life. He is judged in terms of his real character, by a God "unto whom all hearts are open, all desires known, and from whom no secrets are hid."

Heaven is a state in which the vision of God is enjoyed in a "life of perfect service" of God.

Hell is alienation from God, and therefore the loss of that goal to which man's whole existence is directed.

Episcopalians do not believe in a physical heaven or hell; these are "states of being." The departed in whom there is some possibility of goodness are prepared for the full enjoyment of God by such cleansing and purifying as they may require—in a way, this resembles the idea of "purgatory." But Episcopalians do not use the term in their official teaching because they feel that it is often associated with crude ideas of payment of penalty and the like.

By the "resurrection," the Episcopal Church means not the raising of the physical body we now possess but the re-creation by God of the total personality of man with a "spiritual body"—that is, with an instrument of self-expression appropriate to a heavenly life.

What then is meant by salvation?

Modern Episcopalians tend to understand by this term "health or wholeness of life."

Salvation means that one is given the wholeness which is God's will for man, and is delivered from arrogance and selfishness. Salvation has to do not only with the "hereafter" but also with man's present earthly existence. In man, sinner because he is ridiculously proud and self-centered, there is no real "health"; by fellowship with God in Christ, he is brought into the sphere of healthy and whole life.

Does the Episcopal Church have a priesthood?

It does. There are three "orders of ministry" included in "Holy Orders": bishops, priests, deacons.

The Offices of Instruction state that the bishop's office is "to be a chief pastor in the Church; to confer Holy Orders; and to administer confirmation."

A priest's office is "to minister to the people committed to his care; to preach the Word of God; to baptize; to celebrate the Holy Communion, and to pronounce absolution and blessing in God's name."

The deacon assists the priest in divine service and other ministrations; he is a minister in the real sense of the word, but without such "higher" privileges as priest and bishop.

The priest is the "ministerial representative" for Christ in his church; he also represents the priesthood of the laity, which is shared by all who are baptized.

An Episcopal minister is never called a "preacher," since that is only one aspect of his office; he is also celebrant of the Holy Communion — absolver, teacher, shepherd of his flock.

The ministers of the Episcopal Church may marry or not marry as they see fit, "as they shall judge the same to serve better to godliness."

Are there monks and nuns in the Episcopal Church?

Yes. There are many orders of Episcopal monks and nuns, both in the United States and elsewhere.

Some are purely "contemplative"—that is, engaged in prayer; others are "mixed"—that is, engaged both in prayer and in teaching, writing, preaching.

These men and women take the vows of poverty, chastity and obedience. They do not marry. They live in communities established for the purpose of sharing a common life of work and prayer.

What is meant by "high," "low" and "broad" Church?

These words are used to describe parishes, but they are misleading.

A "high" parish is one which emphasizes sacramental worship, the supreme value of the "Catholic tradition," and a rather elaborate service of worship.

A "low" parish is one in which the services are simpler and a stronger emphasis is placed on the gospel and on personal religion.

In a "broad" parish, which may be either "high" or "low," the importance of a rational understanding of the Christian tradition is stressed, with a concern for "liberal values."

But all these emphases meet in the proclamation of the gospel, sacramental worship and the reasonable presentation of Christianity. Episcopalians appeal to scriptures, tradition and personal experience, as well as reason, for vindication of the truth of the Christian faith. Differences in emphasis are welcomed in the Episcopal Church, as long as the central affirmations are maintained.

Does the Episcopal Church permit divorce?

In America, the "canons" (or church law) do not recognize divorce, but do provide a number of grounds for annulment—the ecclesiastical declaration that no marriage has in fact existed because of some factor that made such impossible.

A bishop may permit a divorced person to remarry if certain conditions are met. He may also admit to Holy Communion persons who have been divorced and remarried—if they can prove that they are in good faith, are struggling to live a Christian life and have demonstrated their stability and repentance.

What is the Episcopalian attitude to birth control?

The Anglican Communion has spoken, through its conference of bishops at Lambeth, on birth control, saying that when practiced without selfish motives, it is permissible. There has been much discussion of the "moral theology" of contraception, but no more clearly defined position has yet been taken.

Do Episcopalians believe that theirs is the only true faith?

No. We hold that all who are baptized (whether by Episcopalian or other baptism, provided it is with water and in the name of the Holy Trinity) are members of the Church of Christ. Christ is the "head" of his Church (called in the New Testament "The Body of Christ") and those who belong to him by baptism are his "members."

Confirmation by the bishop is necessary to communicant status, but it is not believed to be "joining the Church." It is a sacramental rite by which, Episcopalians believe, the Holy Spirit is given to a Christian reaching communicant status.

Even those who are not actually baptized, but by intention would be baptized if they were able, are believed to be "saved." The Church is Christ's instrument for fulfilling his purpose in the world and the means by which his continuing presence is made available. Of that one Church, Episcopalians believe they are a part; they have never claimed they are the only part.

How is the Episcopal Church governed?

In different countries, the Anglican Communion has different kinds of government.

In the United States, there are parishes, with elected laymen t represent the congregation; dio ceses, with the "convention" u der which the bishop and n clergy carry on the Church work; and a general conventio which meets every three yea and represents the entire Amer can Church.

The Church is democrati delegates to the general conve tion and laymen to diocesan co ventions are elected. At t general convention, the House Deputies, composed of laym and priests, and the House Bishops, in which all bisho may sit, must concur in legisl tive measures. Neither bisho nor parish clergy have any aut cratic rights; all must coopera with the laity.

How many Episcopalians a there in the United States?

Over 2,715,825 Americans ha been baptized in the Episcop lian faith. In addition, a qua ter-million or so persons look the Church for ministrations b are not formal members. Th Episcopal Church has 6,958 cle gy in the United States, in 7,9 parishes and missions.

What role has the Episcop Church played in American hi tory?

The first service of the Ang can Communion in the Ne World was held at Jamestow Virginia, in 1607. For ma years, the Episcopalians in t colonies were under the bish of London; with the War of I dependence, they became se governing.

A majority of the founders this nation were Episcopalians including George Washingt Alexander Hamilton, Jam Madison, James Monroe, Jo Marshall and John Jay. Fr that time to the present, t Church has played a significa part in our national life. Desp its close fellowship with t Church of England, it has be thoroughly American and members are loyal citizens this land.

The Sawkill Fire Company was called out three times last week. Milton Winne's chicken coop on Murray Hill was destroyed by fire. Due to a lack of telephones in the area, and the resultant delay in notifying the volunteers, it was impossible to save the building but the company was successful in preventing further damage to surrounding buildings and the woods nearby. They also were called early one morning for a fire at Camp Woodcliffe which burned some stored mattresses. The cause of the blaze was undetermined. Their third call last week was for a dump and woods fire on Robert Saphir's property to the rear of the James residence in Upper Sawkill. The blaze was reported by the fire tower to Fire Warden Harry Siemsen.

Slight Change Seen In Hurricane Course

Miami, Fla., Aug. 6 (AP)—Hurricane Connie changed its course slightly during the night and will bypass the Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico to the north.

Gordon Dunn, chief storm forecaster in the Miami Weather Bureau, said the first big tropical storm of the year still moved west-northwestward in the general direction of the Bahamas and the south Atlantic coast and his special weekend alert to U. S. coastal areas remained in effect.

At 9 a. m. (EST) the center of the storm edged past the Virgin Islands, about 1,100 miles southeast of Miami, at a forward speed of about 14 miles an hour.

talent should be able to serve the government "without excessive financial sacrifice" and that most of these top bracket officials still were at 1949 pay scales.

HE ASKED a $25,000 scale for the cabinet, an increase of $2,500 a year, with a related shift in salaries for several hundred other executives, ranging up to $4,000 more annually.

House leaders cooperated by suspending rules and pushing the increase through on July 30 after brief discussion and without a record vote.

But when the bill came up in the Senate, Russell arose and objected, noting that there had been no hearings and the bill appeared to include many inequities.

HE SAID the pay of the commissioner of internal revenue, who must collect 60 billions a year to pay all salaries and other government costs, would be raised only to the level of the "lowest assistant postmaster general."

Morse joined Russell in criticism of the method of taking up the bill and its contents.

Their objections blocked action on the measure.

Chairman Johnston (D-SC) of the Senate Civil Service Committee is expected to order public hearings on it early in the January session.

"I never knew before that she had heart trouble," he said yesterday. "But now that I look back, there were little things."

One of those "little things" happened the night before her death, when the tiny, fiery Latin was rushing through a comedy-musical sequence for a television film with Jimmy Durante. At one point she dropped to one knee, out of breath.

"That's OK, Carmy," said Durante, as cameras continued. "I'll take that line."

After the film was completed in time to beat a screen actors guild strike deadline, she entertained the cast at an impromptu party at her home. Then, after the last guest had gone home, she collapsed.

Miss Ball was already ill from the disease when she and Long became engaged. When they were married in Santa Barbara, Calif., in April, 1954 she walked down the aisle on an artifical limb. Later she starred in a movie and a live television show and, with Long, played a song-and-dance act in nightclubs in Palm Springs, Calif., Tucson, Ariz., and her native Buffalo, N. Y.

He kept the recurrence of her disease a secret from her until three months ago. July 5 she was admitted to City of Hope Medical Center, where she stayed until doctors said she could go home last week.

She also is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard D. Ball.

Miss Miranda, born in Portugal, got her start in the entertainment world in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, at 17. Producer Lee Shubert brought her to this country, where her baremidriff costumes and fruit-salad headpieces—and a wild, hip-swinging samba — took her to stardom in films like "Down Argentine Way" and "Copacabana."

In recent years she had concentrated mostly on television and nightclub work.

focation of social and economic legislation."

He called Eisenhower's proposal for federal aid in building schools inadequate. He accused southern Democrats of preventing a vote on any school bill because of fear that anti-segregation riders might be attached.

Sen. Holland (D.-Fla.) said he doesn't think anybody is going to pay much attention to the ADA complaint.

SEN. KUCHEL (R.-Calif.) said that Eisenhower's recommendation on domestic problems were "excellent." He said blame for their failure of passage rested on the doorstep of the Democratic-controlled Congress.

"It was Congress that fouled up the highway legislation, not President Eisenhower," he said. "The President's requests went unheeded and no suitable alternatives were adopted. Indeed, no alternative, good or bad, went through Congress."

The Senate passed its own version of a road construction bill but the House rejected all such legislation in a dispute over financing it.

SEN. O'MAHONEY (D.-Wyo.) said the President's highway program failed because he proposed financing it outside the burget with bonds which investment brokers would have been able to sell at a "comfortable profit."

He said that a public housing bill was sent to the President's desk "only because the Democratic leadership in the Senate favored it."

MISSING—Mrs. Wilma Allen, 34, wife of a wealthy North Kansas City auto dealer, William Allen Jr., was sought by police August 5 after her blood-stained car containing her ripped and bloody clothing was found abandoned under a viaduct. She had been missing since noon the day before. (AP Wirephoto)

scream if any strange persons attempted to enter their motor car, was last seen early Thursday afternoon during a shopping trip.

Her husband, president of one of Kansas City's larger automobile (Chevrolet) agencies, said "if anybody—a stranger—tried to force entry into her car, I'm sure she would have screamed and put up a severe struggle."

Allen told friends he had almost given up hope of seeing his wife alive and does not believe she is a victim of a kidnap plot for ransom.

Maj. Eugene Pond, chief of detectives, said a report that two men were seen dragging a woman across a road at a lake where the Allens maintain a summer home was discounted as having any bearing on the case.

POND SAID that judging from the condition of Mrs. Allen's blood-stained clothing found stuffed in the trunk of her abandoned car the garments had not been dragged on the ground.

Her car was found early yesterday in a parking area near the Union Station here. Pond said blood found in and on the car was believed about three to six hours old.

There were about 68 miles registered on the speedometer of the car that cannot be accounted for by Allen or others in the family.

Mrs. Allen's children told officers when their mother drove away Thursday to keep an 11 a. m. appointment with a hairdresser the top on her convertible car was down. When found the top was up and the rear flap closed.

POLICE SAID missing articles of Mrs. Allen's clothing include a scarf, metal head clasp and silk hose.

She was believed to be carrying about $25 at the time of her disappearance.

Mrs. Frank E. Cookus, Tulsa, Okla., mother of Mrs. Allen, described her daughter and Allen as being "desperately in love, just like they were still on their honeymoon."

Yesterday, the Brink's guards who foiled the holdup by giving chase in a blazing gun battle through city streets, were given checks of $1,000 by the company. Stanley J. Klodzinski, 32, Kenneth A. Kemp, 31, and Edward Thompson, 47, received their's at the Brink's office.

Eugene Clohessy, 27, received his in the hospital where he is recovering from a shoulder wound received when one of the bandits opened fire on him with a submachinegun during the holdup.

It was this gunfire that apparently unnerved Sylvester Mazzella, 46, of the Bronx, and Anthony Pattinato, 39, of Baltimore, who fled along with Sheridan with only two money boxes from the truck.

They dropped the boxes, containing about $150,000, during their getaway attempt. They have been arraigned on first degree robbery and are being held for the grand jury.

Mazzella is also wanted for questioning by the immigration authorities who claim he is wanted for deportation to Italy.

Would List Rosenberg Group as Subversive

Washington, Aug. 6 (AP)—Rep. Walter (D-Pa.) said today he will ask Atty. Gen. Brownell to list as subversive the national committee to secure justice in the Rosenbergs case.

Such a listing would not affect the now-disbanded organization, but would hinder government employment of those connected with it.

Walter spoke to newsmen after his House Un-American Activities Committee ended four days of hearings on the Communists' role in the campaign to save the lives of Julius and Ethel Rosenberg.

The Rosenbergs were executed as atomic spies in June, 1953, after a long legal battle that attracted international attention.

AT TROY, an 18-year-old garage employe was scalded fatally by steam he was using to clean a truck motor. Coroner Anthony E. Matera said Thomas H. McBain of Cohoes apparently passed out, possibly from heat prostration, and the steam nozzle dropped on his chest.

At least four heat records were broken. Albany's 99 bettered a 59-year-old mark of 94. The 96 at Syracuse was six degrees above the 1947 record. Rochester's 96 was a degree higher than the 55-year-old mark.

Schenectady had 94, a degree higher than the 1934 record.

The Conservation Department kept close watch on the baking woodlands. Fourteen small forest fires were burning but the department said all were under control.

Even Lake Erie was overheated. The temperature at Emerald channel, Buffalo, was 75. Industrial plants were having trouble using the water for cooling prcesses.

At the Huntley station of the Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. officials said it took longer to condense the steam because the water was so warm.

THE CATTARAUGUS county farm agent, William G. Howe, said he had noted "some improvement" in stunted pastures and crops. Western New York got some rain Thursday.

Showers and cooler air brought some relief to heat-stricken regions of the midwest today.

THE CENTER of the cooler air in western Lake Superior moved eastward. It was expected to reach north of Lake Ontario tonight.

But the cool air didn't spread far south. Although Chicago got some respite from 11 straight days of 90 or higher temperatures, the hot and humid weather persisted in the southern half of Illinois and Indiana.

Readings climbed to 100 yesterday in Boston and at New York's LaGuardia Field. It was a hot 94 in New York city, 97 in Philadelphia and in the 90s over most of the western third of the country. Similar marks were in prospect today.

was no fire, but the props threw great chunks of the fence in all directions, one piercing the left side of the plane just behind the cockpit.

Co-pilot Ralph Gray of Minneapolis credited Stone's actions with averting a possible major tragedy.

"He used up all the runway he could afford," Graves said, "and turned us away from real trouble."

Other crew members were stewardesses Helen Kennedy and Louise Holden, also both of Minneapolis.

The plane, en route from Minneapolis to Chicago, came to rest less than 100 yards from the spot where a Braniff Airliner crashed July 17, killing 22 persons.

IT WAS A nerve-wracking experience for five persons in the car driven by George Meyers of Youngstown, Ohio, which was narrowly missed by the plane's roll onto Central avenue. Two women from his car were taken to a hospital and treated for shock.

Meyers, a spot welder, was pale and shaken from the experience when he talked to a reporter. He said the huge plane bearing down on him through the high grass was frightening.

"All I could think of was to slam on the brakes," he said.

The plane came to rest about 20 feet in front of his bumper.

HAWKS COME HOME TO ROOST—British-made Hawker Hunter jets—140 million dollars' worth—are being bought by the United States for use by the Royal Air Force, according to a Defense Department announcement. On order since 1953 under the United States off-shore procurement program which is designed to build up armament of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, they were at first believed to be intended for the new German air force. The 465 planes will replace some 400 F-86 Sabre Jets the United States assigned to the RAF in 1952 and 1953, at a "critical time" in Britain's airpower build-up. Sabre Jets will be assigned to other countries, according to a department spokesman.

The Sawkill Fire Company held their regular monthly dance at the firehouse, on July 30, with music by the Hilltoppers. A large crowd attended. The next dance will be held on Sunday evening, September 3, in conjunction with the fire company's annual Labor Day weekend picnic and bazaar which will be held again this year at the firehouse and fire company grounds opening at 1 p. m.

The famous homemade foods donated by the local residents will be available, buffet style, throughout the afternoon and early evening. There will be games and the dancing, which will be free, will begin at 9 p. m.

St. Ann's annual picnic and bazaar will be held at the church hall and surrounding grounds on Sunday, August 14, beginning at 1 p. m. It is sponsored by the Holy Name Society and Rosary Society of St. Ann's parish, under chairmanship of John J. Hartigan, assisted by co-chairman Michael Haggerty. Home made foods will be available throughout the afternoon and evening, and are donated to this annual affair by the ladies of the parish. Free bus transportation will be provided from and to Kingston with busses leaving from the Central Post Office at 2 p. m., and 4 p. m., and from St. Joseph's School at 2:15 p. m. and 4:15 p. m., and return trips to Kingston from St. Ann's about 7:30 p. m. and 9 p. m.

The Sawkill Fire Company was called out three times last week. Milton Winne's chicken coop on Murray Hill was destroyed by fire. Due to a lack of telephones in the area, and the resultant delay in notifying the volunteers, it was impossible to save the building but the company was successful in preventing further damage to surrounding buildings and the woods nearby. They also were called early one morning for a fire at Camp Woodcliffe which burned some stored mattresses. The cause of the blaze was undetermined. Their third call last week was for a dump and woods fire on Robert Saphir's property to the rear of the James residence in Upper Sawkill. The blaze was reported by the fire tower to Fire Warden Harry Siemsen.

Mrs. Alvin Boice, Alvin Boice Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Julius Vitarius and Miss Ada Brown, Kingston, visited Mr. and Mrs. Frank Joy and Mr. and Mrs. Francis Joy and family, Hallahan's Hill, Wednesday night.

The Ladies' Auxiliary, Sawkill Fire Company, held a meeting at the firehouse Wednesday night. Plans were discussed for the annual Labor Day weekend picnic and bazaar. The Auxiliary will serve the buffet style meals. They will also be in charge of a booth for the children. Their next regular meeeting will be held the first Wednesday evening in September.

The Sawkill Fire Company will hold a regular monthly meeting at the firehouse Monday at 8 p. m. All members and any other interested men of the community and fire district are invited to attend. Refreshments will be served.

The local weatherman, Harry J. Siemsen, reports total rainfall .69 inch during July. The normal amount for this time of the year is 3-4 inches. The woods are in extremely dry condition and everyone is cautioned to use every care to prevent fires.

Slight Change Seen In Hurricane Course

Miami, Fla., Aug. 6 (AP)—Hurricane Connie changed its course slightly during the night and will bypass the Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico to the north.

Gordon Dunn, chief storm forecaster in the Miami Weather Bureau, said the first big tropical storm of the year still moved west-northwestward in the general direction of the Bahamas and the south Atlantic coast and his special weekend alert to U. S. coastal areas remained in effect.

At 9 a. m. (EST) the center of the storm edged past the Virgin Islands, about 1,100 miles southeast of Miami, at a forward speed of about 14 miles an hour.

talent should be able to serve the government "without excessive financial sacrifice" and that most of these top bracket officials still were at 1949 pay scales.

HE ASKED a $25,000 scale for the cabinet, an increase of $2,500 a year, with a related shift in salaries for several hundred other executives, ranging up to $4,000 more annually.

House leaders cooperated by suspending rules and pushing the increase through on July 30 after brief discussion and without a record vote.

But when the bill came up in the Senate, Russell arose and objected, noting that there had been no hearings and the bill appeared to include many inequities.

HE SAID the pay of the commissioner of internal revenue, who must collect 60 billions a year to pay all salaries and other government costs, would be raised only to the level of the "lowest assistant postmaster general."

Morse joined Russell in criticism of the method of taking up the bill and its contents.

Their objections blocked action on the measure.

Chairman Johnston (D-SC) of the Senate Civil Service Committee is expected to order public hearings on it early in the January session.

"I never knew before that she had heart trouble," he said yesterday. "But now that I look back, there were little things."

One of those "little things" happened the night before her death, when the tiny, fiery Latin was rushing through a comedy-musical sequence for a television film with Jimmy Durante. At one point she dropped to one knee, out of breath.

"That's OK, Carmy," said Durante, as cameras continued. "I'll take that line."

After the film was completed in time to beat a screen actors guild strike deadline, she entertained the cast at an impromptu party at her home. Then, after the last guest had gone home, she collapsed.

Miss Ball was already ill from the disease when she and Long became engaged. When they were married in Santa Barbara, Calif., in April, 1954 she walked down the aisle on an artifical limb. In recent years she had concentrated mostly on television and nightclub work.

He called Eisenhower's proposal for federal aid in building schools inadequate. He accused southern Democrats of preventing a vote on any school bill because of fear that anti-segregation riders might be attached.

Sen. Holland (D.-Fla.) said he doesn't think anybody is going to pay much attention to the ADA complaint.

SEN. KUCHEL (R.-Calif.) said that Eisenhower's recommendation on domestic problems were "excellent." He said blame for their failure of passage rested on the doorstep of the Democratic-controlled Congress.

"It was Congress that fouled up the highway legislation, not President Eisenhower," he said. "The President's requests went unheeded and no suitable alternatives were adopted. Indeed, no alternative, good or bad, went through Congress."

The Senate passed its own version of a road construction bill but the House rejected all such legislation in a dispute over financing it.

SEN. O'MAHONEY (D.-Wyo.) said the President's highway program failed because he proposed financing it outside the burget with bonds which investment brokers would have been able to sell at a "comfortable profit."

He said that a public housing bill was sent to the President's desk "only because the Democratic leadership in the Senate favored it."

scream if any strange persons attempted to enter their motor car, was last seen early Thursday afternoon during a shopping trip.

Her husband, president of one of Kansas City's larger automobile (Chevrolet) agencies, said "if anybody—a stranger—tried to force entry into her car, I'm sure she would have screamed and put up a severe struggle."

Allen told friends he had almost given up hope of seeing his wife alive and does not believe she is a victim of a kidnap plot for ransom.

Maj. Eugene Pond, chief of detectives, said a report that two men were seen dragging a woman across a road at a lake where the Allens maintain a summer home was discounted as having any bearing on the case.

POND SAID that judging from the condition of Mrs. Allen's blood-stained clothing found stuffed in the trunk of her abandoned car the garments had not been dragged on the ground.

Her car was found early yesterday in a parking area near the Union Station here. Pond said blood found in and on the car was believed about three to six hours old.

There were about 68 miles registered on the speedometer of the car that cannot be accounted for by Allen or others in the family.

Mrs. Allen's children told officers when their mother drove away Thursday to keep an 11 a. m. appointment with a hairdresser the top on her convertible car was down. When found the top was up and the rear flap closed.

POLICE SAID missing articles of Mrs. Allen's clothing include a scarf, metal head clasp and silk hose.

She was believed to be carrying about $25 at the time of her disappearance.

Mrs. Frank E. Cookus, Tulsa, Okla., mother of Mrs. Allen, described her daughter and Allen as being "desperately in love, just like they were still on their honeymoon."

Eugene Clohessy, 27, received his in the hospital where he is recovering from a shoulder wound received when one of the bandits opened fire on him with a submachinegun during the holdup.

It was this gunfire that apparently unnerved Sylvester Mazzella, 46, of the Bronx, and Anthony Pattinato, 39, of Baltimore, who fled along with Sheridan with only two money boxes from the truck.

They dropped the boxes, containing about $150,000, during their getaway attempt. They have been arraigned on first degree robbery and are being held for the grand jury.

Mazzella is also wanted for questioning by the immigration authorities who claim he is wanted for deportation to Italy.

Would List Rosenberg Group as Subversive

Washington, Aug. 6 (AP)—Rep. Walter (D-Pa.) said today he will ask Atty. Gen. Brownell to list as subversive the national committee to secure justice in the Rosenbergs case.

Such a listing would not affect the now-disbanded organization, but would hinder government employment of those connected with it.

Walter spoke to newsmen after his House Un-American Activities Committee ended four days of hearings on the Communists' role in the campaign to save the lives of Julius and Ethel Rosenberg.

The Rosenbergs were executed as atomic spies in June, 1953, after a long legal battle that attracted international attention.

AT TROY, an 18-year-old garage employe was scalded fatally by steam he was using to clean a truck motor. Coroner Anthony E. Matera said Thomas H. McBain of Cohoes apparently passed out, possibly from heat prostration, and the steam nozzle dropped on his chest.

At least four heat records were broken. Albany's 99 bettered a 59-year-old mark of 94. The 96 at Syracuse was six degrees above the 1947 record. Rochester's 96 was a degree higher than the 55-year-old mark.

Schenectady had 94, a degree higher than the 1934 record.

Even Lake Erie was overheated. The temperature at Emerald channel, Buffalo, was 75. Industrial plants were having trouble using the water for cooling prcesses.

THE CATTARAUGUS county farm agent, William G. Howe, said he had noted "some improvement" in stunted pastures and crops. Western New York got some rain Thursday.

Showers and cooler air brought some relief to heat-stricken regions of the midwest today.

THE CENTER of the cooler air in western Lake Superior moved eastward. It was expected to reach north of Lake Ontario tonight.

But the cool air didn't spread far south. Although Chicago got some respite from 11 straight days of 90 or higher temperatures, the hot and humid weather persisted in the southern half of Illinois and Indiana.

Readings climbed to 100 yesterday in Boston and at New York's LaGuardia Field. It was a hot 94 in New York city, 97 in Philadelphia and in the 90s over most of the western third of the country. Similar marks were in prospect today.

was no fire, but the props threw great chunks of the fence in all directions, one piercing the left side of the plane just behind the cockpit.

Co-pilot Ralph Gray of Minneapolis credited Stone's actions with averting a possible major tragedy.

"He used up all the runway he could afford," Graves said, "and turned us away from real trouble."

Other crew members were stewardesses Helen Kennedy and Louise Holden, also both of Minneapolis.

The plane, en route from Minneapolis to Chicago, came to rest less than 100 yards from the spot where a Braniff Airliner crashed July 17, killing 22 persons.

IT WAS A nerve-wracking experience for five persons in the car driven by George Meyers of Youngstown, Ohio, which was narrowly missed by the plane's roll onto Central avenue. Two women from his car were taken to a hospital and treated for shock.

Meyers, a spot welder, was pale and shaken from the experience when he talked to a reporter. He said the huge plane bearing down on him through the high grass was frightening.

"All I could think of was to slam on the brakes," he said.

The plane came to rest about 20 feet in front of his bumper.

HAWKS COME HOME TO ROOST—British-made Hawker Hunter jets—140 million dollars' worth—are being bought by the United States for use by the Royal Air Force, according to a Defense Department announcement. On order since 1953 under the United States off-shore procurement program which is designed to build up armament of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, they were at first believed to be intended for the new German air force. The 465 planes will replace some 400 F-86 Sabre Jets the United States assigned to the RAF in 1952 and 1953, at a "critical time" in Britain's airpower build-up. Sabre Jets will be assigned to other countries, according to a department spokesman.

LEGISLATIVE RECKLESS DRIVING

Nobody seems willing to deny the nation's great need for more highways. But apparently you can find plenty of people, especially in Congress, who won't commit themselves on how we should pay for them.

So now the country faces another dismal period of waiting, perhaps for as long as two years, before an adequate, properly financed highway program may come into being.

It was not unexpected that the House killed President Eisenhower's road program, key portions of which were to be financed by federal revenue bonds not to be counted as part of the national debt. The lawmakers, particularly the majority Democrats, disapproved this feature.

The House did cause a surprise, however, when it overturned the Democrats' substitute plan by a margin of roughly two and a half to one.

The Democratic proposal called for spending 50 billion dollars of federal and state money for roads over a 13-year period. Of this, $12,423,000,000 was to be provided by new taxes on gasoline, diesel fuel, truck tires and tubes, and other highway-user items.

According to some astonished and disappointed Democratic leaders, the taxes were the sticking point. Few House members were willing to impose them.

Top Democrats openly laid a good part of the opposition to the trucking lobby. Many legislators privately admitted that the heat was terrific from those who would feel the tax bite most sharply.

Speaker Rayburn viewed the outcome so gloomily that he doubted Congress would get together on a highway program before 1957.

If that prediction should prove accurate, the country's road network likely will be in far worse condition then than it is today.

Thousands of additional miles of highway will deteriorate in that interval, without adequate maintenance or repair. Millions more cars and trucks will crowd the traffic lanes. New highways now under construction will be loaded with vehicles from the moment they are opened.

The nation's staggering annual total of fatalities on the streets and highways will continue to shock us all.

In the face of the great need, in the face of this worsening prospect, the lawmakers have done nothing. And by their negative performance they have confessed moral bankruptcy, utter irresponsibility and lack of courage.

When the mess gets worse, as it surely will, the average American citizen may be minded to fix the blame. He can look first to those who voted this year to do nothing, and then to the men, whoever they are, whom the lawmakers say pressured them into shirking their duty.

Most golfers would like to see a ball that would streak straight and true when hit squarely. All of them nowadays seem to skid off to one side or the other.

GOVERNMENT BY MINORITY

As everybody should know by now, excessively big government is excessively expensive government. Equally bad, it degenerates into government by minority.

Economic Intelligence points out that there are now 230 Congressional committees and subcommittees and adds: "It is becoming progressively more and more impossible for a newspaperman or anyone else to keep track of what is going on in Washington. Almost no one can see the process as a whole. This makes for government by minority — vocal, articulate, self-seeking minorities. . . . This is the stuff of which dictatorship is made."

Cutting government down to proper size would save billions of dollars. It also can save the institution of representative government itself.

A person's age is his own concern, even though everybody seems to try to make it their business.

GOVERNMENT BY FAVORITES

It is because of the enormous amounts of money that each political party has to raise to get itself elected to office that our Government, despite its enormous complexity, continues to an astonishing degree to be governed by Presidential favorites—favorites in the sense that someone is rewarded by their appointment to various offices.

Even the President's Cabinet, which should be the highest administrative body in the land, often includes men whose principal qualification is fund-raising activity. Sometimes such men are rewarded for pre-Convention loyalty to the fortunate contender for the Presidency. There seem to be degrees of loyalty that have to be taken into account: Those who were loyal before the Convention; those who became loyal at the convention; those who were bought away from other candidates during the Convention; those who became loyal during the election campaign. It takes any President some time to shake such people out of his Administration and he has to do it with extraordinary politeness to avoid damaging local relationships for his next campaign. Some who come in this way prove able and fitting.

As so much political money has its origin in New York, those who have access to New York money-collections are very important persons politically. They often collect from out-of-towners who make their headquarters in New York. The credit goes to their home state. Often the collectors are lacking in political ideas and are not trained for the peculiarities of government service, but they expect a reward. Some of them have never been associated with any activity other than financing, which means that they know how to pull money together from various sources, to put that money behind the purchase of an old venture or to create a new one, to find the personnel for operations and to push a product or a service. These men make excellent managers in private enterprise.

While such managerial qualities are rare and command a high reward in business, they are not always suitable in the policy-making agencies of government, in which the individual is often required to possess philosophic qualities and historic aptitude to grasp the political potentials of a problem. The so-called policy men in government offices are really good at management.

The value of the Hoover Commission's reports, apart from the great volume of detail concerning our Government made available in the Task Force papers, is that they call attention to the astonishing fact that a nation which is prime in industrial and agricultural efficiency, is incapable of efficiency in government. Our Administration is costly, duplicative, wasteful and hard on citizens. It rarely performs its functions as capably as private business does.

None of the business men in government would manage their own businesses as they run their government departments. Before they take office, they always know exactly what to do; after they take office, they soon become bogged down in the administrative morass which they find in Washington. A creeping disease overtakes them: They want to be popular; they want to be admired by their own assistants; they come to like publicity and particularly pictures of themselves. Their wives like Washington. These business men in government know how to manage their offices efficiently; it is rather that they dare not become involved in politically awkward situations. They are more troubled by public relations than by problems of management.

Ezra Taft Benson is an excellent example of the government official who tries to run a non-politically motivated administrative agency and always finds himself in political difficulties. He has not been able to break away from an internal pressure-group organization, within his Administration, which he intended to clean out when he took over but which is still functioning with great power because it is politically stronger than the responsible head of the department.

Robert Stevens was never in charge of the Army when he was its Secretary because the political generals and the inside civilian staff organized to control him. Harold Talbott quarrelled with generals and admirals who finally discovered an Achilles heel and got him out. The Eisenhower Administration has had a large turnover on the second level of administration because so many who came to Washington with him to help establish an efficient Administration discovered that what they knew as efficiency outside government is not wanted, for political and fund-raising reasons, inside government.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

MORE ABOUT EPILEPSY

The first step in the treatment of epilepsy, naturally, is to correct any condition that has been found to contribute to seizures. Sometimes, but rarely an operation can be performed to relieve some pressure on the brain that may be causing the seizures. In other cases, physical defects that have been found can be corrected and suitable hygenic measures begun. Once these matters have been attended to, a further attempt is made to increase the patient's resistance to seizures and this is done by the use of certain medicines and drugs and sometimes certain diet suggestions.

The object in view in the medicinal treatment of epilepsy is to prevent the occurrence of seizures for a long period—two years at least—and so attempt to eliminate the element of habit. The golden opportunity to cure epilepsy is at the beginning before it has become a habit. The first seizure is the great danger symptom." Some of the drugs used are phenobarbital, potassium bromide, sodium bromide. Phenobarbital in a dosage for infants of one-quarter grain three to six times daily has been found effective. Older children start with this dosage and may go up to three-quarters to one grain twice daily. Adults usually take one grain at bedtime and if necessary add three-quarters grain during the day. Such doses may be continued for months. It is understood, of course, that your physician will prescribe whichever drug he feels most suitable for the individual case for he must watch the results carefully. Most medicines have to be taken daily over a long period, generally long after the seizures have entirely ceased. Studies have shown that in the majority of cases, the proper medicines given under careful medical supervision greatly reduces the number and severity of the seizures and in many instances is able to stop them altogether.

Care must be taken that the patient does not harm himself during an attack by striking himself or some other object. Clothing should be loosened about the neck and a cork or other suitable object placed between the teeth to prevent biting of the tongue. Patients subject to attacks at night should be protected against falling from bed. If the patient vomits he should be turned on his side. As he regains consciousness he should be spoken to reassuringly.

Even more than the ordinary healthy individual, the epileptic should avoid fatigue, mental strain, infection, constipation and indulgence in alcohol. On the other hand, occupational programs and mild athletic recreations should be provided. The cooperation of the epileptic child's teachers should be sought in recognizing the need for unusual patience and understanding, for these children may be sulky, irritable, and unduly self-centered. Of course, an epileptic child who shows tendencies toward unsocial or criminal behavior needs to be removed from his ordinary surroundings and hospitalized. In such a situation, however, something more than epilepsy is to blame.

Washington, (NEA) — Since Harold Talbott testified before a Senate committee about his otuside business dealings, Democrats on Capitol Hill have been chuckling over an unconfirmed story that's going around.

It seems that Paul Mulligan, Talbott's business partner, received a telegram from Edgar Dixon of Dixon and Yates. Addressed from the West Memphis Boat and Fishing Club, it read as follows:

"DEAR PAUL—YOU SHOULD HAVE SEEN THE BIG ONE THAT GOT AWAY FROM ME."

P.G.A. CHAMP DOUG FORD has a reputation for getting around a golf course in record time, but we'll put our money on Lt. Gen. Floyd Parks, Commanding General of the Second Army.

Here is a guy who really travels. When Parks plays at nearby Ft. Meade where he's now stationed, he uses a special jeep. You can't beat it for speed. After whacking the ball the former all-Army golf champion hops in the vehicle and takes off for the next lie. Who drives the jeep? The caddy, natch.

THE TOWN IS STILL buzzing over the gigantic champagne "do" that all the Latin American ambassadors put on for Sen. Homer Capehart (R.-Ind.) as a thank-you for a three-day tour of the Midwest he treated them to last May.

But it has now leaked out that the affair nearly flopped before it ever got under way. The 2000 guests invited to the plush Pan American Union came close to participating in a fix-it, drink-it, grab-it, and eat-it-yourself party.

Each embassy was supposed to contribute waiters for the reception, but, due to a mix-up, only a smattering of servants showed up. As Washington's top diplomatic set started arriving, a panicky search ensued for bartending talent.

They practically pulled guys off the street. Caterers were called and told to send over anybody old enough to hold a tray. Miraculously, the evening went off smoothly except for a minor incident. One bottom-of-the-barrel waiter let the champagne go to his head and asked an ambassador's wife for a dance. He left shortly after.

YOU CAN'T RAISE your elbow on the embassy circuit these days without bumping into inviting native dishes. Lately, the fare has been strictly Near Eastern.

Over at the Egyptain embassy where they celebrated the country's national holiday, buffet specialists went after the stuff called, "Dolmah." It's grape leaves filled with rice and ground meat.

"Jello-Rice" was featured at an independence day reception given by Liberian Ambassador Clarence Simpson and his wife. This concoction is made of highly seasoned chicken and rice.

But the eye-opening mixture offered at the Ethiopian embassy topped everything. The occasion was a birthday party in honor of Emperor Haile Selassie so the native chefs prepared "Mulmul" which is spicy minced meat rolled in thin bread.

Then to help wash it down the crowd was given a sweet tasting brew known as "Mead," which is made of honey, barley and Ethiopean hops. It's one of the most powerful drinks in the world and dates back to Biblical times. And after a few gulps several of the guests weren't quite sure what century they were in.

SEN. NORRIS COTTON (R.-NH) has an old lady constituent who wrote him for a bound volume of obituaries. Said she, "I just love to read about dead Congressmen."

Says Cotton, "If the legislative jam and the weather don't break soon, she will be reading about some more."

NOW IS THE TIME of year when a host or hostess can make a killing. It doesn't require quantities of expensive booze, or piles of fancy food, or swank entertainment. Just a swimming pool. For in this tropical climate guests will climb over each other to get to an aquatic party.

A muggy evening ago, Rep. John Rooney (D.-N.Y.) and Daniel Flood (D.-Pa.) and Sen. Milton Young (R.-N.D.) had the time of their lives splashing around at a pool party given by State Department Deputy Chief of Protocol, Victor Purse.

"How I love this cool, cool water," cooed Rooney.

EVEN THE NEW Turkish Ambassador Haydar Gork is getting on the bandwagon. Arriving here last June, he found that there was an old pool in the basement of the embassy.

Trouble was the draining system didn't work, and it hadn't been used for a number of years. So Gork promptly called in the plumbers. Now the pool is being repainted and should soon be ready.

"He will be the first diplomat in Washington to do a lot of entertaining in his cellar," cracks a friend.

AFTER ACTING Senate Majority Leader Earle Clements (D.-Ky.) spent a long time explaining his position on a complicated issue to the press the other day, one reporter groaned, "I'm at sea Senator, would you go over that again?

"For a fella who doesn't swim," replied Clements, "I don't see why I should jump in with you."

The national championships begin tonight at the Palmer House in Chicago, with a welcoming-in game that serves as a sort of warm-up. No national championship is settled in tonight's game, but the entire proceeds are turned over to charity. Last year the warm-hearted bridge experts raised more than $2000 for the American Cancer Society in such a game, and they expect to do as well this year.

Today's hand, taken from last year's charity game, was played by Norman Kay of Merchantville, N. J. For the last four or five years, Norman has been one of the leading tournament players of the country, and at this moment he has won more master points in bridge tournaments than any other player for the year so far.

West led the nine of diamonds against Norman's very normal contract of four hearts. East put up the jack, and Norman made the kind of play that keeps him up among the leaders year after year.

Strange as it may seem, Kay refused the first trick!

He decided that West was sure to have at least one more diamond. That being the case, South was sure to lose a diamond trick sooner or later.

Think this over to prove the point. If South wins the first trick and later knocks out the ace of spades, whichever defender takes the spade ace will be in position to lead a diamond.

After that strange first trick East continued with a diamond to South's ace. Declarer drew trumps with the ace and king, knocked out the queen of hearts, and had no trouble regaining the lead and drawing the outstanding trump, and setting up dummy's spades to discard clubs.

At most tables South lost the contract by winning the first diamond. When West got the lead with the queen of hearts, he cashed the ace of spades, led a diamond to the queen, and was assured of the setting trick when East led a third diamond. Whether South ruffed high or low, West was sure to win a trick with the nine of hearts.

Questions -- Answers

Q—What is the general rule in feeding horses?

A—It is this: One and one-quarter pounds of hay and one-half to three-quarters of a pound of grain should be given to a horse for every hundred pounds of his weight. Thus a 1200-pound horse would be fed 16 pounds of hay and nine pounds of grain every day.

Q—What were "grandfather" clauses in state constitutions?

A—After the Civil War, several southern states adopted constitutional requirements limiting the right to vote to persons whose grandparents had been voters. This automatically prevented Negroes from voting. In 1915 these clauses were declared by the Supreme Court to be null and void.

LEGISLATIVE RECKLESS DRIVING

Nobody seems willing to deny the nation's great need for more highways. But apparently you can find plenty of people, especially in Congress, who won't commit themselves on how we should pay for them.

So now the country faces another dismal period of waiting, perhaps for as long as two years, before an adequate, properly financed highway program may come into being.

It was not unexpected that the House killed President Eisenhower's road program, key portions of which were to be financed by federal revenue bonds not to be counted as part of the national debt. The lawmakers, particularly the majority Democrats, disapproved this feature.

The House did cause a surprise, however, when it overturned the Democrats' substitute plan by a margin of roughly two and a half to one.

The Democratic proposal called for spending 50 billion dollars of federal and state money for roads over a 13-year period. Of this, $12,423,000,000 was to be provided by new taxes on gasoline, diesel fuel, truck tires and tubes, and other highway-user items.

According to some astonished and disappointed Democratic leaders, the taxes were the sticking point. Few House members were willing to impose them.

Top Democrats openly laid a good part of the opposition to the trucking lobby. Many legislators privately admitted that the heat was terrific from those who would feel the tax bite most sharply.

Speaker Rayburn viewed the outcome so gloomily that he doubted Congress would get together on a highway program before 1957.

If that prediction should prove accurate, the country's road network likely will be in far worse condition then than it is today.

Thousands of additional miles of highway will deteriorate in that interval, without adequate maintenance or repair. Millions more cars and trucks will crowd the traffic lanes. New highways now under construction will be loaded with vehicles from the moment they are opened.

The nation's staggering annual total of fatalities on the streets and highways will continue to shock us all.

In the face of the great need, in the face of this worsening prospect, the lawmakers have done nothing. And by their negative performance they have confessed moral bankruptcy, utter irresponsibility and lack of courage.

When the mess gets worse, as it surely will, the average American citizen may be minded to fix the blame. He can look first to those who voted this year to do nothing, and then to the men, whoever they are, whom the lawmakers say pressured them into shirking their duty.

Most golfers would like to see a ball that would streak straight and true when hit squarely. All of them nowadays seem to skid off to one side or the other.

GOVERNMENT BY MINORITY

As everybody should know by now, excessively big government is excessively expensive government. Equally bad, it degenerates into government by minority.

Economic Intelligence points out that there are now 230 Congressional committees and subcommittees and adds: "It is becoming progressively more and more impossible for a newspaperman or anyone else to keep track of what is going on in Washington. Almost no one can see the process as a whole. This makes for government by minority — vocal, articulate, self-seeking minorities. . . . This is the stuff of which dictatorship is made."

Cutting government down to proper size would save billions of dollars. It also can save the institution of representative government itself.

A person's age is his own concern, even though everybody seems to try to make it their business.

'These Days'

GOVERNMENT BY FAVORITES

It is because of the enormous amounts of money that each political party has to raise to get itself elected to office that our Government, despite its enormous complexity, continues to an astonishing degree to be governed by Presidential favorites—favorites in the sense that someone is rewarded by their appointment to various offices.

Even the President's Cabinet, which should be the highest administrative body in the land, often includes men whose principal qualification is fund-raising activity. Sometimes such men are rewarded for pre-Convention loyalty to the fortunate contender for the Presidency. There seem to be degrees of loyalty that have to be taken into account: Those who were loyal before the Convention; those who became loyal at the convention; those who were bought away from other candidates during the Convention; those who became loyal during the election campaign. It takes any President some time to shake such people out of his Administration and he has to do it with extraordinary politeness to avoid damaging local relationships for his next campaign. Some who come in this way prove able and fitting.

As so much political money has its origin in New York, those who have access to New York money-collections are very important persons politically. They often collect from out-of-towners who make their headquarters in New York. The credit goes to their home state. Often the collectors are lacking in political ideas and are not trained for the peculiarities of government service, but they expect a reward. Some of them have never been associated with any activity other than financing, which means that they know how to pull money together from various sources, to put that money behind the purchase of an old venture or to create a new one, to find the personnel for operations and to push a product or a service. These men make excellent managers in private enterprise.

While such managerial qualities are rare and command a high reward in business, they are not always suitable in the policy-making agencies of government, in which the individual is often required to possess philosophic qualities and historic aptitude to grasp the political potentials of a problem. The so-called policy men in government offices are really good at management.

The value of the Hoover Commission's reports, apart from the great volume of detail concerning our Government made available in the Task Force papers, is that they call attention to the astonishing fact that a nation which is prime in industrial and agricultural efficiency, is incapable of efficiency in government. Our Administration is costly, duplicative, wasteful and hard on citizens. It rarely performs its functions as capably as private business does.

None of the business men in government would manage their own businesses as they run their government departments. Before they take office, they always know exactly what to do; after they take office, they soon become bogged down in the administrative morass which they find in Washington. A creeping disease overtakes them: They want to be popular; they want to be admired by their own assistants; they come to like publicity and particularly pictures of themselves. Their wives like Washington. These business men in government know how to manage their offices efficiently; it is rather that they dare not become involved in politically awkward situations. They are more troubled by public relations than by problems of management.

Ezra Taft Benson is an excellent example of the government official who tries to run a non-politically motivated administrative agency and always finds himself in political difficulties. He has not been able to break away from an internal pressure-group organization, within his Administration, which he intended to clean out when he took over but which is still functioning with great power because it is politically stronger than the responsible head of the department.

Robert Stevens was never in charge of the Army when he was its Secretary because the political generals and the inside civilian staff organized to control him. Harold Talbott quarrelled with generals and admirals who finally discovered an Achilles heel and got him out. The Eisenhower Administration has had a large turnover on the second level of administration because so many who came to Washington with him to help establish an efficient Administration discovered that what they knew as efficiency outside government is not wanted, for political and fund-raising reasons, inside government.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

MORE ABOUT EPILEPSY

The first step in the treatment of epilepsy, naturally, is to correct any condition that has been found to contribute to seizures. Sometimes, but rarely an operation can be performed to relieve some pressure on the brain that may be causing the seizures. In other cases, physical defects that have been found can be corrected and suitable hygenic measures begun. Once these matters have been attended to, a further attempt is made to increase the patient's resistance to seizures and this is done by the use of certain medicines and drugs and sometimes certain diet suggestions.

The object in view in the medicinal treatment of epilepsy is to prevent the occurrence of seizures for a long period—two years at least—and so attempt to eliminate the element of habit. The golden opportunity to cure epilepsy is at the beginning before it has become a habit. The first seizure is the great danger symptom." Some of the drugs used are phenobarbital, potassium bromide, sodium bromide. Phenobarbital in a dosage for infants of one-quarter grain three to six times daily has been found effective. Older children start with this dosage and may go up to three-quarters to one grain twice daily. Adults usually take one grain at bedtime and if necessary add three-quarters grain during the day. Such doses may be continued for months. It is understood, of course, that your physician will prescribe whichever drug he feels most suitable for the individual case for he must watch the results carefully. Most medicines have to be taken daily over a long period, generally long after the seizures have entirely ceased. Studies have shown that in the majority of cases, the proper medicines given under careful medical supervision greatly reduces the number and severity of the seizures and in many instances is able to stop them altogether.

Care must be taken that the patient does not harm himself during an attack by striking himself or some other object. Clothing should be loosened about the neck and a cork or other suitable object placed between the teeth to prevent biting of the tongue. Patients subject to attacks at night should be protected against falling from bed. If the patient vomits he should be turned on his side. As he regains consciousness he should be spoken to reassuringly.

Even more than the ordinary healthy individual, the epileptic should avoid fatigue, mental strain, infection, constipation and indulgence in alcohol. On the other hand, occupational programs and mild athletic recreations should be provided. The cooperation of the epileptic child's teachers should be sought in recognizing the need for unusual patience and understanding, for these children may be sulky, irritable, and unduly self-centered. Of course, an epileptic child who shows tendencies toward unsocial or criminal behavior needs to be removed from his ordinary surroundings and hospitalized. In such a situation, however, something more than epilepsy is to blame.

The national championships begin tonight at the Palmer House in Chicago, with a welcoming-in game that serves as a sort of warm-up. No national championship is settled in tonight's game, but the entire proceeds are turned over to charity. Last year the warm-hearted bridge experts raised more than $2000 for the American Cancer Society in such a game, and they expect to do as well this year.

Today's hand, taken from last year's charity game, was played by Norman Kay of Merchantville, N. J. For the last four or five years, Norman has been one of the leading tournament players of the country, and at this moment he has won more master points in bridge tournaments than any other player for the year so far.

West led the nine of diamonds against Norman's very normal contract of four hearts. East put up the jack, and Norman made the kind of play that keeps him up among the leaders year after year.

Strange as it may seem, Kay refused the first trick!

He decided that West was sure to have at least one more diamond. That being the case, South was sure to lose a diamond trick sooner or later.

Think this over to prove the point. If South wins the first trick and later knocks out the ace of spades, whichever defender takes the spade ace will be in position to lead a diamond.

After that strange first trick East continued with a diamond to South's ace. Declarer drew trumps with the ace and king, knocked out the queen of hearts, and had no trouble regaining the lead and drawing the outstanding trump, and setting up dummy's spades to discard clubs.

At most tables South lost the contract by winning the first diamond. When West got the lead with the queen of hearts, he cashed the ace of spades, led a diamond to the queen, and was assured of the setting trick when East led a third diamond. Whether South ruffed high or low, West was sure to win a trick with the nine of hearts.

Tonight's program will be excerpts from two operas—Beethoven's "Fidelio" and Wagner's "Die Gotterdammerung." Tall, Dark and Slim

Typifying fall's slim silhouette in the daytime dress is this design by Herbert Sondheim. It's a blonde beaver wool, has banded empire bodice and zipped back. It's a slimness that's curved to the body. Sable furs are by Ritter Brothers.

By GAILE DUGAS
NEA Women's Editor

New York — (NEA) — In all fashions this fall, the slim silhouette takes over, and the daytime dress picture shows it off to perfection.

This straight and narrow story is expressed in many different ways: the long torso, the sheath, the overblouse dress. The sheath appears over and over again, in many different versions.

It's shown in company with the slim coat of all lengths or with the so-called longer jacket that's nearly a short coat. Then there's the sheath worn with a cape, the sheath with an overskirt, the jumper with sheath lines.

Wide skirts are still shown but these are in modified bell shapes that smooth down over the hipline to spread out at the hem.

For daytime, the slim tunic and the overskirt are stories in themselves. As part of the ensemble look this year, the tunic comes in lengths from hip to knee and is usually straight though some slightly spreading versions are shown. A straight, sleeveless dress is often worn with a narrow tunic.

The overskirt, designed as contrast to the straight sheath, is detachable. It lends itself to fabric and color combinations (satin over wool, silk in various textures) and carries out the ensemble look for fall. There's always a careful correlation between basic dress and overskirt a feeling of the well-integrated whole.

"Blackened" colors are high fashion this fall. This means a color that's darkened by use of black, making for a misty, soft look. Black is back again this year but on a new note of elegance. Browns look new, particularly in the tweed mixtures. And "brown" takes in any shade from beige to the really blackened brown. Gray is shown, too, but usually in darkened versions.

Greens, in shades from subdued to vivid, are everywhere. The olive and soft moss greens are just as strong as the brilliant emeralds.

Blue, in mixtures and again, in blackened tones, are numerous. Reds are shown in warm tones and in the dark tweeds as well.

This straight and narrow story is expressed in many different ways: the long torso, the sheath, the overblouse dress. The sheath appears over and over again, in many different versions.

It's shown in company with the slim coat of all lengths or with the so-called longer jacket that's nearly a short coat. Then there's the sheath worn with a cape, the sheath with an overskirt, the jumper with sheath lines.

Wide skirts are still shown but these are in modified bell shapes that smooth down over the hipline to spread out at the hem.

For daytime, the slim tunic and the overskirt are stories in themselves. As part of the ensemble look this year, the tunic comes in lengths from hip to knee and is usually straight though some slightly spreading versions are shown. A straight, sleeveless dress is often worn with a narrow tunic.

The overskirt, designed as contrast to the straight sheath, is detachable. It lends itself to fabric and color combinations (satin over wool, silk in various textures) and carries out the ensemble look for fall. There's always a careful correlation between basic dress and overskirt a feeling of the well-integrated whole.

"Blackened" colors are high fashion this fall. This means a color that's darkened by use of black, making for a misty, soft look. Black is back again this year but on a new note of elegance. Browns look new, particularly in the tweed mixtures. And "brown" takes in any shade from beige to the really blackened brown. Gray is shown, too, but usually in darkened versions.

Greens, in shades from subdued to vivid, are everywhere. The olive and soft moss greens are just as strong as the brilliant emeralds.

Blue, in mixtures and again, in blackened tones, are numerous. Reds are shown in warm tones and in the dark tweeds as well.

Draperies Will Conceal Awkward Wall Offsets

Draperies have other uses besides their conventional use at windows. Awkward or ugly offsets in the wall can be minimized by building shelves from floor to ceiling, and across that end of the room; and then concealing the shelves with full-length draperies to match those at the windows. These storage curtains should not be more than a yard wide, so that the shelves are readily accessible.

'The Rodel' Has Unusual Room Layout

Rooms	Six
Bedrooms	Two
Closets	Eight
Cubage
House	26,300'
Garage	3,700
Dimensions
House	32' x 42'
Overall	52'

A charming one story house "The Rodel," presented today by the Home of the Week Plan Service, features a somewhat unusual yet completely convenient room layout.

There are five good-sized rooms inside this house; the two bedrooms, living room and dining room make up the main section of the house while the long narrow kitchen occupies the entire left wing. Central hallways connect the rooms in this house.

Most any type of exterior finish can be successfully used on a house of this type. Brick and multi-colored roofing — as used in the accompanying illustration — make an extremely attractive combination. The living room bay enhances both the exterior and the interior of the house.

Although the living room is large enough to serve as both a dining room and a living room, you'll probably find it more convenient to use the regular dining room because it is that much nearer to the kitchen. The built-in china closet in the dining room will make a handy storage place for your best china and glassware.

Both bedrooms are well lighted and ventilated. In these rooms as throughout the house, there is ample closet space.

Breakfast Nook

A comfortable well lighted breakfast nook is located at the front end of the long kitchen; the laundry is located at the rear. In the kitchen proper all your equipment — including storage facilities—is within but a few steps of each other. Thus, preparing meals, cleaning up afterwards, etc., will be conveniently easy in this kitchen.

The back door provides ready access to the yard from the laundry. In stormy weather you'll especially appreciate the protection provided by the breezeway between the house and the garage.

Measuring 32 by 42 feet, "The Rodel" has a cubage of 26,300 feet. Cubage of the garage is 3700 feet. To build this house you'll need aproximately a 60-foot lot. And, because the garage is located in back of the house you will probably want to build the house itself fairly near to the street or roadway.

Blueprints Available

Complete plans and specifications for this house and all other "Home of the Week" designs are available at moderate cost. For plant prices, write to the Home Building Editor, Dept. 24, Kingston Daily Freeman and enclose a self addressed, 3c stamped envelope. Allow 7 to 10 days for a reply.

Grape Ivy Vine Ideal For Growing Indoors

Despite the fact that it bears some resemblance to poison ivy, Grape Ivy or Vitis Rhombifolia is an ideal indoor vine. A vigorous grower that is apparently free from all insect pests, even red spider and aphids, Grape Ivy is an exceptionally satisfactory house plant for a gloomy corner or an overheated house.

Ordinary potting soil is adequate for this useful house plant if it is given some light, although it does not require the direct sunlight most indoor plants need. Watering every two or three days is sufficient since soil should never become soggy.

Attractive in indoor window boxes and hanging pots, Grape Ivy is also suitable for the novelty plant stands because of its color and graceful appearance. Copper containers are especially good as they blend with the pink coloring of young shoots. Shining leaves in groups of threes and daintily twined tendrils give Grape Ivy a fragile look that belies its hardiness but enhances its graceful growth.

New Sandpaper May Be Major Improvement

A Westboro, Mass., company has come up with what may be the first major improvement in sandpaper in a hundred years, according to the United Press. Ordinary sandpaper, of course, starts clogging up the minute you start using it on paint or wood.

The Bay State Abrasive Products company's idea is to start with a tough, open-mesh fabric and imbed the abrasive in it. The paint and wood scrapings flow right through the holes and the cloth keeps right on working. A quick swish in water cleans it, so it lasts at least 10 times as long as ordinary sandpaper.

Here Is the Way To Tint Oil Paint

When tinting an oil paint, do not add a dab of color to a whole can of paint and expect to stir it evenly into one smooth tint. If you do, some of it will not be assimilated and will appear in ugly streaks when you least expect it. Thin the oil color with a little of the paint, stir thoroughly, then combine the mixture with that in the large container and blend well. See that the last streak of color is absorbed and then strain the whole mixture through a cloth strainer.

Use Old Paint Brush

Keep a few old paint brushes handy for painting in corners and other tight spots. Trying to catch these areas with a new brush will bend the bristles out of shape and cut down the usefulness of the brush. With an old beat-up brush it doesn't matter too much. Also use only old brushes or cheap ones on masonry and other rough surfaces.

Ways to Brighten The Dark Room

If your room is too dark, here are several possible ways of improving the outlook. Paint the walls and woodwork a light color which will reflect light wherever it is and add light to the room. Refinish one or two of the pieces of furniture in natural finish, or paint them to match the wall color.

Take down your old window shades and use draw draperies hanging straight at the sides of the window, extending on to the wall to let in all the light possible.

Roller shades made of glazed chintz with yellow background will pick up every bit of light and magnify it, as it comes into the room. Or, use only sheer yellow casement curtains.

Home Furnishings Styles Favor Bright Navy Blue

Navy blue, long a favorite in the apparel field, is currently winning wide acceptance from home furnishings stylists.

The particular shade used for decorative fabrics and rugs is a clear, bright hue of navy, and combines beautifully with grays, beiges, yellow, lighter shades of blue, flame, tangerine, certain shades of green, and, of course, with white.

Contemporary in feeling, it is especially effective when used with light woods. Practical and a "good-mixer," Navy is here to stay.

Journeying Painters

At one time the term "journeyman painter" was thought to have originated from the fact that, during the Renaissance, painters journeyed from country to country with their brushes.

Standard Doorway

Doorways in the home should be at least two feet eight inches wide.

Hiroshima Marks Bomb Birthday

Hiroshima, Japan, Aug. 6 (AP) — Hiroshima marked the 10th anniversary of its atomic destruction today with an appeal to the world "never to repeat the tragedy."

The birthday of war's first nuclear bombing dawned hot, with a few clouds dotting the sky, just like Aug. 6, 1945.

SURVIVORS of A-bomb victims arose before dawn to secure places close to the center of Nakashima Peace Park, site of the anniversary ceremony.

As the sun rose, they burned incense and strewed flowers at the foot of the cenotaph, a stone white arch bearing the inscription "Rest ye in peace, for we (humanity) shall never repeat the mistake."

By 8 a. m., the crowd had grown to 50,000. All was still.

The instant of 8:15 brought not the blinding flash and death of 1945 but the tolling of bells and sounding of whistles.

THE THRONG knelt in prayer for the dead and for peace.

Mayor Tadao Watanabe, in the city's annual peace declaration, said, "we will continue to remind the world never to repeat the tragedy of Hiroshima until true world peace is established eternally."

Five hundred doves were released as he spoke.

Red China Rules Out Cease Fire

London, Aug. 6 (AP) — Red China expressed hope today for "positive results" in the talks with the United States at Geneva, but said any discussion of a "cease fire" in the Formosa dispute was out.

Peiping radio declared that a "cease fire between China and the Chiang Kai-shek clique" was a Chinese domestic affair which has nothing to do with the United States.

THE PEIPING commentator said, however, "an atmosphere of negotiation and goodwill is essential for the current Chinese-American talks," and added:

"The Chinese people, and the people of other countries, as well as some prominent Americans—are expecting positive results from these talks."

The United States has said flatly the status of Formosa or the offshore islands held by the Chinese Nationalists is not subject to negotiation.

The Geneva talks, at the ambassador level, recessed Thursday until Monday.

London, Aug. 6 (AP) — Red China expressed hope today for "positive results" in the talks with the United States at Geneva, but said any discussion of a "cease fire" in the Formosa dispute was out.

Peiping radio declared that a "cease fire between China and the Chiang Kai-shek clique" was a Chinese domestic affair which has nothing to do with the United States.

THE PEIPING commentator said, however, "an atmosphere of negotiation and goodwill is essential for the current Chinese-American talks," and added:

"The Chinese people, and the people of other countries, as well as some prominent Americans—are expecting positive results from these talks."

The United States has said flatly the status of Formosa or the offshore islands held by the Chinese Nationalists is not subject to negotiation.

The Geneva talks, at the ambassador level, recessed Thursday until Monday.

Some scientists believe that lichen, or some similar plant must grow on Mars, says the National Geographic Society.

Gain Tie For Lead

Ellis Gets Losers' Sole Hit

American LL

Team	Won	Lost
Sprague Dodgers	5	1
Electrol Giants	5	1
Lions Yankees	1	5
Moose Red Sox	1	5

Dick Ellis' single with two out in the last inning ruined a no-hitter for the Electrol Giants last night in American Little League action at the LL Stadium.

Besides that, and the fact that it scored the Lions Yankees' only run, the base blow had little consequence. The Giants were on the long end of a 18-1 score.

The victory tied the Giants with the Sprague Dodgers for the league lead. Both clubs have 5-1 records.

Ellis' last-ditch safety off Vince Smedes scored Bill Bush with the sole Yank run.

Don Dittus was the starter and winner. He and Smedes allowed only one base on balls apiece.

THE GIANTS had a field day against Ed O'Connor and George Tomson. They pasted the Yankees hurlers with a 15-hit assault.

Dittus and Joe Uhl headed the hit parade. Dittus had four singles and Uhl a pair of doubles and another of singles.

Tom Gardner slugged a home run with Dittus aboard in the third inning. Mike Hart and Walt Harder had two hits each.

The Giants got 11 runs in the second inning, with each player scoring at least once. It was no contest.

Thomson Holds Tam Golf Lead

Chicago, Aug. 6 (AP)—Peter Thomson wanted to slice his spoon the shot — something duffers try to avoid—but it went straight.

It cost him a chance to break Tam O'Shanter's course record of 63 yesterday and the $10,000 prize that is offered for doing it.

But Thomson sailed in with a 65 and a 36-hole tally of 136-8 under par. He held a two-stroke lead over Al Mengert and the new PGA champion, Doug Ford, at the halfway mark in the $25,000 All-American golf tourney.

Thomson, winner of the British Open the last two years and collector of some $2,000 at Tam O'Shanter in 1954, had two goals in mind as he teed off today in the third round.

By winnnig the All-American title he can become the youngest pro ever to cart away a championship at Tam O'Shanter. Thomson, of Melbourne, Australia, is 25. Boz Toski was 27 when he took the "world" title at Tam in 1954.

A victory for Thomson also would mark the first time an overseas entry has won since Bobby Locke of Johannesburg, South Africa, grabbed the All-American crown in 1947 and 1950. Locke is not competing this time.

SPORTS

By Charles J. Tiano
Sports Editor

When you step to the tee at Sunday's Freeman hole-in-one tournament, the odds will be at least 8,606 to 1 against your shooting an ace.

If anybody is crazy enough to offer that kind of odds you'll take them, of course.

The 8,606 to 1 odds are based on 20 years of play in the now defunct World-Telegram hole-in-one tournament which was restricted to players who had an ace to their credit.

During those 20 years, a total of 17,211 players took 86,055 shots and made only 10 aces. A total of 4,265 landed in the 5-foot "birdie" circle.

Going into Sunday's competition the all-time Freeman records are 1 foot, 6½ inches set by Lynn Brooks last year and the 2 foot, 9 inch shot registered by Edna Britt in 1952.

Miss Britt, incidentally, won the tournament two years in a row (1951-1952). The odds on that happening again would run pretty high, too.

• Flotsam and Jetsam:

Murray Olderman of the NEA sports staff said he wouldn't want to dispel that image of the "new, mature, lovable Ted Williams," but relations between the Splinter and Boston sports writers have never been worse. The pre-game show at Fenway Park is on the steps of the Red Sox dugout, where Master Theodore delivers a daily oration on the pathetic species of sports writers in general and those from Boston, in particular. . . . Williams urged the newspapermen be barred from the field (already they can't enter the clubhouse before a game). They, in turn, tell him to visit a psychiatrist. . . . Mrs. Gerald Hallenbeck, the crack Catskill Country Club golfer, won the annual Invitational at her club with an 81. . . . The tragic death of Carston Conn, 18-year-old Marlboro Central athlete comes as a shock to Ulster County Athletic League circles. Conn was a terrific performer in basketball and baseball, who would have reached his peak as a high school star next season.

• Of Men and Mice:

Topflight pitching is still the best weapon for a short baseball series. The Kingston American Little Leaguers yielded only eight runs and 11 hits in four games up to the District 4 finals. . . . Commenting on the recent tournament, the Walden Citizen-Herald sports columnist said: "Walden fans who followed our Little League All Stars to Saugerties last week suffered rough handling by Saugerties rowdies. Vile language and manhandling tactics. So, Walden was glad to learn that Saugerties took a pasting in the next playoff game from the Kingston Americans. . . ." (Ed. Note—Actually, it was only 1-0). . . . It is regrettable that the tournaments cannot be played without creating bad feelings, but that is the unhappy situation. The Kingston-Glasco contest also made some folks unhappy. But LL officials cannot be held responsible for those temperamental outbursts. It proves what we have said many times that the adults invariably cause more trouble than the players.

If you're one of thousands of area baseball fans who haven't seen the Kingston Colonials in action, you get one of the two remaining chances tonight at Dietz Stadium. This hardy perennial has been operating in almost complete privacy and obscurity since June. League president, William D. Ryan of Newburgh, calls the New York-New Jersey Semi-Pro League a success in its first year of operation and we won't dispute the point. However, if Fred Davi or any other promoter is interested in "league" ideas in 1956, it would seem to us the most natural geographical orbit would include cities like Kingston, Newburgh, Saugerties, Hudson, Catskill, Poughkeepsie, Beacon and a few others.

THE SCOREBOARD

By ED WILKS
(The Associated Press)

Baltimore and Washington, reluctant tailenders, have made the American League race as tight as a cork in a bottle.

The Orioles and Senators, supposedly the soft touches who were to give Chicago and Cleveland the edge on their eastern swing, pulled the string last night and sent the first place brawl into a virtual three-way tie.

Baltimore topped the White Sox 2-1 in 11 innings and Washington rapped the Indians 7-5 while New York moved up from third place with a 3-0 decision over Detroit on Yogi Berra's 200th home run.

And while the last-place Orioles and seventh-place Nats were having a ball, sixth-place Kansas City knocked off fourth-place Boston 5-2.

The White Sox still hold the lead but by a mere two percentage points over the Yanks and Indians. Boston is two games away in the standings.

CHICAGO ERRORS figured in both Baltimore runs, with the clincher coming home as reliefer Millard Howell muffed Willie Miranda's slow roller with the bases loaded. Until the last of the 11th, it had been a pitching duel between Jim Wilson, poison for the first division, and ex-Oriole Harry Byrd.

The Sox had the bases loaded with none out in the 10th, but Wilson, who gave up the Chicago run in the first inning, worked out of it with a double-play and George Kell's infield out.

At Washington, the Nats gave Sal Maglie a rude howdy to the AL. The veteran righthander, belted by the National League so much the New York Giants sold him to Cleveland last Sunday, gave up five runs in the first two frames.

Dean Stone tamed the Tribe on four hits until the Indians broke out for their five runs in the ninth.

BERRA, joining Bill Dickey, Gabby Hartnett and Roy Campanella as the only catchers ever to slug 200 or more homers in the major leagues, belted a 3-1 pitch in the fourth inning after Tiger rookie Jim Bunning had issued his only two walks. Don Larsen, winning his second since coming back from the minors, had some wobbly moments but fanned pinch-hitter Jack Phillips to end it with two men on base in the 9th.

Moments eariler, Hank Bauer had stretched into the right field stands to rob Frank House of a two-run homer.

Kansas City snarled the Red Sox with Gus Zernial's two home runs and a double and the relief work of Tom Gorman. The right-hander saved Vic Raschi's fourth victory by allowing just one run after coming on in the eighth with the bases loaded and none out. Frank Sullivan, Boston's 14-game winner, lost his ninth.

In the National League, Brooklyn lost to Chicago 10-8, but held its 15½ games spread as Pittsburgh bumped off Milwaukee 8-5. New York beat Cincinnati 12-9 and Philadelphia defeated St. Louis 7-4.

Jim Konstanty, ace relief pitcher for the Yankees, was a four-sport star at Syracuse University — baseball, basketball, soccer and boxing.

BALL HAWK—One of the California Cuties who will play against the City Softball League All-Stars on Sunday, Aug. 14, at Dietz Stadium, is Vampira, an outfielder. The game is being promoted by the 50 Club.

Losers Drop To Loop Cellar

Fuoco, Brown Pace Triumph

National LL

Team	Won	Lost
Miron Indians	3	0
Island Dock Tigers	1	1
Hiltebrant Pirates	1	2
Trailway Braves	0	2

The Hiltebrant Pirates shoved the Trailway Braves into the National Little League cellar last night, notching a 10-3 victory at Kingman Park.

Ralph Fuoco's six-hit pitching and Warren Brown's heavy hitting were the big factors in the Pirates' triumph.

Fuoco went the route—the game was halted by darkness after five innings—and struck out five. He walked a pair.

BROWN had two of the seven hits off Bill Reid, the loser, and Bill Huber. Both of Brown's belts were doubles.

The Pirates broke the game wide open with a half dozen runs in the second inning.

Beginning Monday, all games will start at 6 o'clock. Saturday afternoon contests are to begin at 1:30 o'clock.

Davis Cup Picture Cloudy

Glen Cove, N. Y., Aug. 6 (AP)—The over-all Davis Cup picture reached such a state of confusion today that the big question appeared to be not who will win the tennis trophy this year, but who will lose it.

Lurking darkly in the background ready to pounce on any misfortune which might befall either of the two major tennis powers, Australia or America, was a band of audacious Italians, in a position to pull the upset of the decade.

These were the developments:

1. Australia's Keen Rosewall and Rex Hartwig looked anything but impressive in winning opening singles matches from the Japanese at the Nassau Country Club here. Rosewall, playing the porest tennis seen of him in this country, turned back Atsushi Miyagi 6-4, 6-4, 6-1. Hartwig was forced the limit to beat Kosei Kamo 8-6, 6-8, 6-3, 5-7, 6-3.

2. Bill Talbert, U. S. Davis Cup captain, announced that Wimbledon champion Tony Trabert, suffering a shoulder ailment, had been advised by doctors to skip the Casino tournament next week in Newport, R. I.

3. Two other of America's top Davis Cup hopes, Vic Seixas and Eddie Moylan, were beaten at South Orange, N. J. Seixas was trimmed by little-known Sam Giammalva of Houston and Moylan by Dane Kurt Nielsen.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

PITCHING—Jim Wilson Orioles, scattered seven singles, walked three, fanned five and got out of a bases-loaded, none-out jam in the 10th to beat first place Chicago 2-1 in 11 innings.

HITTING—Gus Zernial, Athletics, swatted his 22nd and 23rd home run and a double to drive in three runs in 5-2 victory over Boston.

SETTING FOR HOLE-IN-ONE CONTEST: This is how the specially constructed hole for the Freeman's seventh annual hole-in-one tournament will look to players on Sunday. It is a 135-yard carry from a special tee near the clubhouse porch to the ninth green. For the average player it will be a 7-iron shot. The tee has been resodded by pro Alex Gerlak. Each contestant will hit four balls furnished by the Freeman through the courtesy of the Dunlop Rubber Co. Handsome golf clocks will be awarded to winners of the men's and women's divisions. Play starts at 9 a. m. and continues until all entries have been accommodated. Players who have not filed entry blanks can register on the tee. Getting a preview of the scene in the group on the tee are, l to r: Bernard A. Culloton, James A. Dwyer, winner of the first tournament in 1949; Mrs. John D. Schoonmaker and Mrs. Edwin O'Reilly. Old Time Players Plan Ball Program for Town Ulster Youth

A group of old time baseball players have volunteered to help set up a junior baseball program for School District No. 8, it has been learned.

The school district represents the area between the city limit from Albany avenue extension to Lake Katrine.

Heading the group is Charlie Lay, one of the best ball players ever produced in the area.

The program will be for youngsters between the ages of 8 and 15 and will be set up for the remainder of the season with an eye toward possible affiliation with the Little League in 1956.

Assisting Lay are Bud Leininger, the well known golfer and softball ace; Harold Fulgum, John Hetsco and Ted Musialkiewicz.

Several members of the Ulster-Albany Avenue Business Men's Association have volunteered to give financial assistance to the program. Town of Ulster road superintendent, Vernon Felton, has volunteered to set up and roll a baseball diamond on the School No. 8 property.

Any boy between the age of 8 and 15 is eligible and those wishing to register can do so by filling out a card at the Neighborhood Market, on Vincent street in Lincoln Park.

PISCATORIAL EXPERTS—Adrian Kaplan, left, and L. Charles Miller of Kingston proudly display the whopping 40-inch, 35-pound striped bass they snagged while trolling off Monomoy Beach on a fishing boat out of Rock Harbor, Cape Cod. They used eel skins for bait and made the catch on July 29. The witness was Dr. Daniel Miller of Boston, formerly of Kingston.

Softball Stars To Oppose Cuties

Members of the City Softball League All-Star team have been named. The squad will compete against the Compton, Calif., Cuties Sunday night, Aug. 14, at Dietz Stadium.

Joe Venuti of Perry's Rest and Frank Boyce of the Destroyer A. C. are the probable pitchers for the locals.

Tony Musto, who got the only two Kingston hits against Eddie Feigner, "The King and His Court" star, two months ago, will do the catching.

In the infield will be Ken Steltz, 1b; Bob Martin, 2b; Bill Haber, ss; Cliff Davis, 3b. The outfield is Bill Slover, lf; Bud Leininger, cf; and Champ Holstein, rf.

The Cuties are a group of male softball players who perform in female garments.

Colonials Slate Game With Winsors

The Kingston Colonials and the Brooklyn Windsors, the cellar-dwellers of the New York-New Jersey Semi-pro Baseball League, clash tonight at Dietz Stadium. Game time is 8:30 o'clock.

Both teams have records of one victory and seven defeats.

This will be the next-to-last game for Kingston. The finale is scheduled here next Saturday night against the second-place Paterson, N. J., Uncle Sams.

Bob Maines, who has been pitching for the American Legion Junior team the past fortnight, is again available for mound duty. He'll probably get the starting nod. Ed Dammier and Bruce Bechtold will be in reserve.

One other semi-pro game is scheduled this weekend. The Paterson team is at Newburgh tomorrow afternoon, 2 o'clock, for a meeting with the fourth-place Dodger Jewels.

Ivan Gavin spun a two-hitter in the Fraternal Youth League at Dietz Stadium last night, pitching the American to an 8-2 victory over the Kingston Patrolmen's Association.

The victory kept the Legion hot on the heels of the co-leaders in the pennant race, the Volunteer Firemen and Kiwanis Club entries.

Gavin gave up a single to the first man he faced—George Norton. Frank Weishaupt got the only other safety, a hit with one away in the fifth inning.

THE LEGION combed Glenn Newell for nine hits. George Uhl and Danny Steltz got two apiece and Tom Childs banged a triple.

Gavin struck out two and walked six. He got the KPA batters out constantly on popups. Newell fanned five and passed four.

Cancer Again Perils Career of Mrs. Zaharias

Galveston, Tex., Aug. 6 (AP)—Babe Didrikson Zaharias, woman athlete of the century, has developed a second cancer but "firmly expects to return to golf."

George Zaharias, her husband, said last night doctors at John Sealy Hospital here found a "small cancer lesion" on the right side of the sacrum (posterior of the pelvic girdle). He said X-ray treatments have been started.

Zaharias quoted the doctors as saying the X-ray treatments will stop the pains she had been suffering in her right hip and leg in about 10 days. He said no surgery was contemplated at the time.

Mrs. Zaharias underwent surgery for rectal cancer at Beaumont in 1953. Her athletic career, which has spanned more than two decades and included just about every sport in the books, appeared at an end.

HOWEVER, the operation was believed to have completely removed the cancer and the Babe returned to the tournament trail. She won several tournaments, including the National Open last year.

The Associated Press recently named her "Woman Athlete of the Century."

Since 1953 Mrs. Zaharias has been reporting here for periodic checkups.

Earlier this spring she complained of pains in her back and legs and entered the hospital here in May. She was found to have a ruptured spinal disc and underwent corrective surgery.

The surgery failed to stop the pains and doctors started looking for new causes. The new cancer was announced last night. Mrs. Zaharias has not left the hospital since May.

The big ex-wrestler's voice softened as he told of breaking the news to his plucky wife.

"She never flinched when told she had another cancer," he said.

Then he said she added:

"This is my greatest battle."

Zaharias said she was very thankful to her friends and well-wishers for their prayers and messages and wants them to know she'll "do her best."

Gain Tie For Lead

Ellis Gets Losers' Sole Hit

American LL

Sprague Dodgers	5	1
Electrol Giants	5	1

Dick Ellis' single with two out in the last inning ruined a no-hitter for the Electrol Giants last night in American Little League action at the LL Stadium.

Besides that, and the fact that it scored the Lions Yankees' only run, the base blow had little consequence. The Giants were on the long end of a 18-1 score.

The victory tied the Giants with the Sprague Dodgers for the league lead. Both clubs have 5-1 records.

Ellis' last-ditch safety off Vince Smedes scored Bill Bush with the sole Yank run.

Don Dittus was the starter and winner. He and Smedes allowed only one base on balls apiece.

THE GIANTS had a field day against Ed O'Connor and George Tomson. They pasted the Yankees hurlers with a 15-hit assault.

Dittus and Joe Uhl headed the hit parade. Dittus had four singles and Uhl a pair of doubles and another of singles.

Tom Gardner slugged a home run with Dittus aboard in the third inning. Mike Hart and Walt Harder had two hits each.

The Giants got 11 runs in the second inning, with each player scoring at least once. It was no contest.

Thomson Holds Tam Golf Lead

Chicago, Aug. 6 (AP)—Peter Thomson wanted to slice his spoon the shot — something duffers try to avoid—but it went straight.

It cost him a chance to break Tam O'Shanter's course record of 63 yesterday and the $10,000 prize that is offered for doing it.

But Thomson sailed in with a 65 and a 36-hole tally of 136-8 under par. He held a two-stroke lead over Al Mengert and the new PGA champion, Doug Ford, at the halfway mark in the $25,000 All-American golf tourney.

Thomson, winner of the British Open the last two years and collector of some $2,000 at Tam O'Shanter in 1954, had two goals in mind as he teed off today in the third round.

By winnnig the All-American title he can become the youngest pro ever to cart away a championship at Tam O'Shanter. Thomson, of Melbourne, Australia, is 25. Boz Toski was 27 when he took the "world" title at Tam in 1954.

A victory for Thomson also would mark the first time an overseas entry has won since Bobby Locke of Johannesburg, South Africa, grabbed the All-American crown in 1947 and 1950. Locke is not competing this time.

When you step to the tee at Sunday's Freeman hole-in-one tournament, the odds will be at least 8,606 to 1 against your shooting an ace.

If anybody is crazy enough to offer that kind of odds you'll take them, of course.

The 8,606 to 1 odds are based on 20 years of play in the now defunct World-Telegram hole-in-one tournament which was restricted to players who had an ace to their credit.

During those 20 years, a total of 17,211 players took 86,055 shots and made only 10 aces. A total of 4,265 landed in the 5-foot "birdie" circle.

Going into Sunday's competition the all-time Freeman records are 1 foot, 6½ inches set by Lynn Brooks last year and the 2 foot, 9 inch shot registered by Edna Britt in 1952.

Miss Britt, incidentally, won the tournament two years in a row (1951-1952). The odds on that happening again would run pretty high, too.

• Flotsam and Jetsam:

Murray Olderman of the NEA sports staff said he wouldn't want to dispel that image of the "new, mature, lovable Ted Williams," but relations between the Splinter and Boston sports writers have never been worse. The pre-game show at Fenway Park is on the steps of the Red Sox dugout, where Master Theodore delivers a daily oration on the pathetic species of sports writers in general and those from Boston, in particular. . . . Williams urged the newspapermen be barred from the field (already they can't enter the clubhouse before a game). They, in turn, tell him to visit a psychiatrist. . . . Mrs. Gerald Hallenbeck, the crack Catskill Country Club golfer, won the annual Invitational at her club with an 81. . . . The tragic death of Carston Conn, 18-year-old Marlboro Central athlete comes as a shock to Ulster County Athletic League circles. Conn was a terrific performer in basketball and baseball, who would have reached his peak as a high school star next season.

• Of Men and Mice:

Topflight pitching is still the best weapon for a short baseball series. The Kingston American Little Leaguers yielded only eight runs and 11 hits in four games up to the District 4 finals. . . . Commenting on the recent tournament, the Walden Citizen-Herald sports columnist said: "Walden fans who followed our Little League All Stars to Saugerties last week suffered rough handling by Saugerties rowdies. Vile language and manhandling tactics. So, Walden was glad to learn that Saugerties took a pasting in the next playoff game from the Kingston Americans. . . ." (Ed. Note—Actually, it was only 1-0). . . . It is regrettable that the tournaments cannot be played without creating bad feelings, but that is the unhappy situation. The Kingston-Glasco contest also made some folks unhappy. But LL officials cannot be held responsible for those temperamental outbursts. It proves what we have said many times that the adults invariably cause more trouble than the players.

If you're one of thousands of area baseball fans who haven't seen the Kingston Colonials in action, you get one of the two remaining chances tonight at Dietz Stadium. This hardy perennial has been operating in almost complete privacy and obscurity since June. League president, William D. Ryan of Newburgh, calls the New York-New Jersey Semi-Pro League a success in its first year of operation and we won't dispute the point. However, if Fred Davi or any other promoter is interested in "league" ideas in 1956, it would seem to us the most natural geographical orbit would include cities like Kingston, Newburgh, Saugerties, Hudson, Catskill, Poughkeepsie, Beacon and a few others.

THE SCOREBOARD

By ED WILKS
(The Associated Press)

Baltimore and Washington, reluctant tailenders, have made the American League race as tight as a cork in a bottle.

The Orioles and Senators, supposedly the soft touches who were to give Chicago and Cleveland the edge on their eastern swing, pulled the string last night and sent the first place brawl into a virtual three-way tie.

Baltimore topped the White Sox 2-1 in 11 innings and Washington rapped the Indians 7-5 while New York moved up from third place with a 3-0 decision over Detroit on Yogi Berra's 200th home run.

And while the last-place Orioles and seventh-place Nats were having a ball, sixth-place Kansas City knocked off fourth-place Boston 5-2.

The White Sox still hold the lead but by a mere two percentage points over the Yanks and Indians. Boston is two games away in the standings.

CHICAGO ERRORS figured in both Baltimore runs, with the clincher coming home as reliefer Millard Howell muffed Willie Miranda's slow roller with the bases loaded. Until the last of the 11th, it had been a pitching duel between Jim Wilson, poison for the first division, and ex-Oriole Harry Byrd.

The Sox had the bases loaded with none out in the 10th, but Wilson, who gave up the Chicago run in the first inning, worked out of it with a double-play and George Kell's infield out.

At Washington, the Nats gave Sal Maglie a rude howdy to the AL. The veteran righthander, belted by the National League so much the New York Giants sold him to Cleveland last Sunday, gave up five runs in the first two frames.

Dean Stone tamed the Tribe on four hits until the Indians broke out for their five runs in the ninth.

BERRA, joining Bill Dickey, Gabby Hartnett and Roy Campanella as the only catchers ever to slug 200 or more homers in the major leagues, belted a 3-1 pitch in the fourth inning after Tiger rookie Jim Bunning had issued his only two walks. Don Larsen, winning his second since coming back from the minors, had some wobbly moments but fanned pinch-hitter Jack Phillips to end it with two men on base in the 9th.

Moments eariler, Hank Bauer had stretched into the right field stands to rob Frank House of a two-run homer.

Kansas City snarled the Red Sox with Gus Zernial's two home runs and a double and the relief work of Tom Gorman. The right-hander saved Vic Raschi's fourth victory by allowing just one run after coming on in the eighth with the bases loaded and none out. Frank Sullivan, Boston's 14-game winner, lost his ninth.

In the National League, Brooklyn lost to Chicago 10-8, but held its 15½ games spread as Pittsburgh bumped off Milwaukee 8-5. New York beat Cincinnati 12-9 and Philadelphia defeated St. Louis 7-4.

Jim Konstanty, ace relief pitcher for the Yankees, was a four-sport star at Syracuse University — baseball, basketball, soccer and boxing.

BALL HAWK—One of the California Cuties who will play against the City Softball League All-Stars on Sunday, Aug. 14, at Dietz Stadium, is Vampira, an outfielder. The game is being promoted by the 50 Club.

The Hiltebrant Pirates shoved the Trailway Braves into the National Little League cellar last night, notching a 10-3 victory at Kingman Park.

Ralph Fuoco's six-hit pitching and Warren Brown's heavy hitting were the big factors in the Pirates' triumph.

Fuoco went the route—the game was halted by darkness after five innings—and struck out five. He walked a pair.

BROWN had two of the seven hits off Bill Reid, the loser, and Bill Huber. Both of Brown's belts were doubles.

The Pirates broke the game wide open with a half dozen runs in the second inning.

Beginning Monday, all games will start at 6 o'clock. Saturday afternoon contests are to begin at 1:30 o'clock.

Davis Cup Picture Cloudy

Glen Cove, N. Y., Aug. 6 (AP)—The over-all Davis Cup picture reached such a state of confusion today that the big question appeared to be not who will win the tennis trophy this year, but who will lose it.

Lurking darkly in the background ready to pounce on any misfortune which might befall either of the two major tennis powers, Australia or America, was a band of audacious Italians, in a position to pull the upset of the decade.

These were the developments:

1. Australia's Keen Rosewall and Rex Hartwig looked anything but impressive in winning opening singles matches from the Japanese at the Nassau Country Club here. Rosewall, playing the porest tennis seen of him in this country, turned back Atsushi Miyagi 6-4, 6-4, 6-1. Hartwig was forced the limit to beat Kosei Kamo 8-6, 6-8, 6-3, 5-7, 6-3.

2. Bill Talbert, U. S. Davis Cup captain, announced that Wimbledon champion Tony Trabert, suffering a shoulder ailment, had been advised by doctors to skip the Casino tournament next week in Newport, R. I.

3. Two other of America's top Davis Cup hopes, Vic Seixas and Eddie Moylan, were beaten at South Orange, N. J. Seixas was trimmed by little-known Sam Giammalva of Houston and Moylan by Dane Kurt Nielsen.

Yesterday's Stars

PITCHING—Jim Wilson Orioles, scattered seven singles, walked three, fanned five and got out of a bases-loaded, none-out jam in the 10th to beat first place Chicago 2-1 in 11 innings.

HITTING—Gus Zernial, Athletics, swatted his 22nd and 23rd home run and a double to drive in three runs in 5-2 victory over Boston.

SETTING FOR HOLE-IN-ONE CONTEST: This is how the specially constructed hole for the Freeman's seventh annual hole-in-one tournament will look to players on Sunday. It is a 135-yard carry from a special tee near the clubhouse porch to the ninth green. For the average player it will be a 7-iron shot. The tee has been resodded by pro Alex Gerlak. Each contestant will hit four balls furnished by the Freeman through the courtesy of the Dunlop Rubber Co. Handsome golf clocks will be awarded to winners of the men's and women's divisions. Play starts at 9 a. m. and continues until all entries have been accommodated. Players who have not filed entry blanks can register on the tee. Old Time Players Plan Ball Program for Town Ulster Youth

A group of old time baseball players have volunteered to help set up a junior baseball program for School District No. 8, it has been learned.

The school district represents the area between the city limit from Albany avenue extension to Lake Katrine.

Heading the group is Charlie Lay, one of the best ball players ever produced in the area.

The program will be for youngsters between the ages of 8 and 15 and will be set up for the remainder of the season with an eye toward possible affiliation with the Little League in 1956.

Assisting Lay are Bud Leininger, the well known golfer and softball ace; Harold Fulgum, John Hetsco and Ted Musialkiewicz.

Several members of the Ulster-Albany Avenue Business Men's Association have volunteered to give financial assistance to the program. Town of Ulster road superintendent, Vernon Felton, has volunteered to set up and roll a baseball diamond on the School No. 8 property.

Any boy between the age of 8 and 15 is eligible and those wishing to register can do so by filling out a card at the Neighborhood Market, on Vincent street in Lincoln Park.

PISCATORIAL EXPERTS—Adrian Kaplan, left, and L. Charles Miller of Kingston proudly display the whopping 40-inch, 35-pound striped bass they snagged while trolling off Monomoy Beach on a fishing boat out of Rock Harbor, Cape Cod. They used eel skins for bait and made the catch on July 29. The witness was Dr. Daniel Miller of Boston, formerly of Kingston.

Softball Stars To Oppose Cuties

Members of the City Softball League All-Star team have been named. The squad will compete against the Compton, Calif., Cuties Sunday night, Aug. 14, at Dietz Stadium.

Joe Venuti of Perry's Rest and Frank Boyce of the Destroyer A. C. are the probable pitchers for the locals.

Tony Musto, who got the only two Kingston hits against Eddie Feigner, "The King and His Court" star, two months ago, will do the catching.

In the infield will be Ken Steltz, 1b; Bob Martin, 2b; Bill Haber, ss; Cliff Davis, 3b. The outfield is Bill Slover, lf; Bud Leininger, cf; and Champ Holstein, rf.

The Cuties are a group of male softball players who perform in female garments.

Both teams have records of one victory and seven defeats.

This will be the next-to-last game for Kingston. The finale is scheduled here next Saturday night against the second-place Paterson, N. J., Uncle Sams.

Bob Maines, who has been pitching for the American Legion Junior team the past fortnight, is again available for mound duty. He'll probably get the starting nod. Ed Dammier and Bruce Bechtold will be in reserve.

One other semi-pro game is scheduled this weekend. The Paterson team is at Newburgh tomorrow afternoon, 2 o'clock, for a meeting with the fourth-place Dodger Jewels.

Ivan Gavin spun a two-hitter in the Fraternal Youth League at Dietz Stadium last night, pitching the American to an 8-2 victory over the Kingston Patrolmen's Association.

The victory kept the Legion hot on the heels of the co-leaders in the pennant race, the Volunteer Firemen and Kiwanis Club entries.

Gavin gave up a single to the first man he faced—George Norton. Frank Weishaupt got the only other safety, a hit with one away in the fifth inning.

THE LEGION combed Glenn Newell for nine hits. George Uhl and Danny Steltz got two apiece and Tom Childs banged a triple.

Gavin struck out two and walked six. He got the KPA batters out constantly on popups. Newell fanned five and passed four.

$15,000 in Stolen Checks Cashed In Albany Area

Albany, Aug. 6 (AP)—A smartly dressed man has cashed more than $15,000 worth of stolen American Express Co. Travelers' checks in the Albany area, the FBI said yesterday.

The blank checks were among $20,000 worth taken from the Tradesmen's Bank and Trust Co. in Philadelphia July 29.

THE MAN converted the negotiable checks in Albany, Troy and Schenectady Monday before the serial numbers of the checks had been ascertained and circulars sent to banking institutions.

He used a different name at each bank.

Travelers' checks have two signature lines. The purchaser signs one line when he buys the checks so that his signature can be checked when he cashes them.

EDWARD SOUCY, agent in charge of the FBI office here, said the staff was working on the case but he declined to give details. In Philadelphia, FBI Agent Norman McCabe said he had been informed that more than $15,000 worth of the checks had been cashed in the Albany area Aug. 1.

Miss Barbara Megill, 27, a clerk in the Philadelphia bank's Foreign Department, told authorities she had placed the 300 checks behind her pocketbook on a five-foot-high counter inside the cage. A partition 18 inches high separtes the inside from the customers.

They were in two bundles, 200 for $50 and 100 for $100, tied together.

MISS MEGILL said she was busy and did not follow her practice of counting the checks immediately and placing them in a strongbox on the floor of the cage. She went back and forth from the window handling other work.

When the rush subsided she said, she returned to attend to the checks and found they were gone. Fifteen other clerks were working in the cage with her but none could explain the checks' disappearance.

The checks cashed here were sent Monday night to a New York city clearing house where they were recognized as among those stolen.

An American Express spokesman said the local banks would suffer no loss on the transactions because the checks were negotiable.

5,000 to March In Legion Parade Today in Buffalo

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 6 (AP)—Some 5,000 American Legionnaires, 40 and 8ers and their respective women's auxiliaries roll into high gear today as the 37th annual convention of the New York State American Legion enters its second day.

While their more businesslike brothers are discussing things of interest at Memorial Auditorium thousands of veterans will swing down Main street—baked to a turn by the long heat wave which has enveloped most of the northeast.

LOCAL NATIONAL Guard units, high school bands and civic groups—in short the works, will be in the line of march.

Last night Main street reverberated to the tune of four part harmony and train whistles as some of the Legionnaires jumped the gun a little. The 40 and 8ers, fun group of the Legion, had several tilting automobiles and locomotive-type vehicles cruising the downtown streets. The 40 and 8ers get their name from the markings on French boxcars during World War 1. Forty men and eight horses, and sometimes vice-versa.

On the serious side, the delegates will hear a talk by State Attorney General Jacob K. Javits. Yesterday, Roy M. Cohn, former investigations committee member under Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R.-Wis.) and Carmine G. De Sapio, New York secretary of state, addressed the delegates.
